the Public Prosecutor to take action against the Socialists.

The significance of this decision can hardly be overrated, as it is not merely a defeat of the government proposal, but a distinct rebuil for the Emperor himself, as it is an open secret that he was the author of this attempt to make the Reichstag surrander one of its privileges. What the Emperor will do, in view of this moral size in the face, is a question which the people are asking themselves. His well-known obstancy of character gives promise that he will not sit quietly by, under this reverse, and a remark which he made to the course of an animated after-dimear conversation at the officers mean of the King's Regiment, at Uhland, during his stay at Hanover, in the middle of the week, is attracting strention. His Majesty said: "Dark days are at hand, and I hope all of my officers will meet them unfinchingly."

It is true that nothing great was expected of him, but the mechanical, unimpressive fashion in which he read his speech sheet by sheet, had he read his speech, sheet by sheet, had a most depressing effect even on the Conservatives, while the somnolent condition in which he sat in his chair in the Reichstag today during important debates, even making allowances for the fact that he is somewhat indisposed, was in no way cal-culated to enhance his prestige. The impression now prevails that the Hobenlohe regime will be short-lived unless the Chancellor quickly develops a more masterly grasp of the situation than this big mistake evidences.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Samuei C. Seely. the ex-book-keeper and defaulter, arrived last night. United States Commissioner Shields fixed his ball at $25,000, and Seely was taken to Ludlow-street fail. After a time, Seely says, he saw the situation becoming more hopeless with each passing day, but this seems to have made no difference to Baker, who con-tinued drawing money from the bank un-til Seely warned him to desist.

The story of Seely's flight from this city, his aimless wanderings before reach-ing Chicago and his meeting with Mac-Farland, who delivered him over to the Farland, who delivered him over to the police, was one in which terror and ingratitude are most strongly blended. Lawver Angel says that Seely left the bank for the first time after so fixing his books that by comparison with those of the paying teller the exact amount of the defalcation could have been discovered within half an hour. Seely then took the midnight train over the Pennsylvania Railroad to Washington, going therea to Railroad to Washington, going thence to Harrisburg, Pa., which place he reached in the afternoon. The Committee on Rules is expected to fix next Friday for the vote in accordance with the original plan of the Democratic members of the committee. Secretary Carlisle was present at the opening of the session, and the presence of St. John had drawn Senator Teller to the hearing, anxious to hear the views of an Eastern silver man on currency revision. THE HEARING.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Great interest was manifested today in the closing hearon the question of currency revision re the Committee on Banking and the Chemical National Bank of New York represented the prevailing view among the bankers, while W. P. St. John of the Mercantile Bank of New York represented the Eastern view, favorable to silver. Williams said the first problem in the clumsy and conglomerate financial system is the disposition to be made of the legal-tender notes. He urged that these notes should be refunded, $50,000,000 at a time, until eliminated from the financial system. Bonds at 3 per cent. should be issued, redeemable in New York city, and, when issued in sufficient volume, being readily convertible, would furnish adequate elasticity to the currency. The tax on the circulation of national-bank notes should at once be removed.

As to the Baltimore plan, Williams said that it would be safe in large cities, but it might start many mushroom banks, merely with a view to issues of notes, and the failure of such banks would cause a loss to the whole system. Conservative and well-managed institutions would absolutely refuse to join hands in meeting the the Chemical National Bank of New York pass the law redeeming them in silver buillon at market value, at the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury, and it might be well to similarly redeem the Sherman notes. With these changes the currency system would become absolutely sound, and the banking system the most perfect ever devised.

Williams was questioned as to the condition of his bank. He said its capital was $300,000. The deposits were more than $1,000,000. The deposits reached $30,000,000. and undivided profits were more than $1,000,000. The deposits reached $30,000,000,000 probably the largest in the United States, if not in the world. Dividends were 150 per cent. annually. The bank stock sold for $4300 a share, of the par value of $100.

President St. John lent much spirit to the hearing by the vigor of his statement, and its novelty, coming from an Eastern banker. "Under official dictation," said he, "tutored by one of the most aggressive of the handful of 'goldites' in the United States. Congress fiddles with the banknotes, while the burning issue is our primary money coin. State in the last election. The splendid victory which had been won, he said, showed that the Republican party is in the line of progress, and that here in California the people are in favor of the policy which means protection to American industries.

"I would be less a man than I am." he said, "if I were not depressed by the occasion. In the battle which has just ended I alone was defeated, but I am not ashamed of my defeat. I can say that I am an honest man. I came to this city with a majority of over cleven thousand votes, but I was defeated. I was sold out by my own party. I was sold out by the Republican party, or some of its members, because I would not make the promises which an honest man could not make; because I could not sell my honor and myself.

because I could not sell my honor and myself.

"A day before the election a committee came to me and promised that I would give certain interests the control of my appointments. That committee also asked me to discharge a trusted employee on account of religion. I refused to do either. I thought that I was a pretty good American. My great-grandfather fought in the revolution. My grandfather was a captain in the war of 1812; one of my brothers was killed at Mylcksburg and another was wounded at Gettysburg, but I was not American enough for the American Protective Association. I was defeated because I was not afraid to say what I think, but ff that be a fauit, I have never truiled the Republican banner in the dust. "So much for myself. I ask nothing for myself. Forget me; forget the personnel of those interested, and remember the duty which you owe to the people of this State, the duty which commands you to support the government, an honest election and a fair count. We must preserve protection at the polls and honesty in the count. As the representatives of a great party, we owe this to the State. "I am informed, and believe, that there was a miscount in this city, and that the votes should be recounted. The Democrats had absolute control of the election machinery, and made it as perfect as it is possible for human ingenuity to do. They had the lowest elements of the city represented in the election booths as officers, and I believe that frauds were committed. Unless the Republican party of this State investigates these frauds and exposes their nature to the people of the State, it will never carry another election to the state. I would rather be besten by fraud than be elected by fraud, and all I think this committee "A day before the election a commi

Hayward, chairman; A. R. Wells, C. P. McLain, A. B. Lemmon, E. K. Taylor, G. C. Ross and C. W. Manwaring.

A motion was then made to adjourn, but Chairman Cornwall declared that he had a few words to say in explanation of his recent actions before the Supreme Court. He declared that the petition which had been presented to the Supreme Court in his name, was on behalf of the State Central Committee. The purpose of the petition, he said, had been misconstrued or misunderstood. It was not to throw out the returns, but to secure a recount of the ballots before taking the matter to Sacramento. A variety of ways had been suggested, but the lawyers had decided that the best way of accomplishing the object was to petition for a writ of mandate.

"I have done the best I could for my party and the people," said Cornwall. "I am satisfied with the medicine I received from the newspapers, and ask the committee to determine whether or not find a resolution was introduced at once. It gave unqualified approved."

agent, as they threaten, for if they do Magilk will go in for reprisals with a vengeance."

A committee of the Pacific Insurance Union is now at work preparing a plan whereby objectionable rules may be so comended that all grievance will be settled. A committee is also consulting with Magil, endeavoring to get him back into the compact. He says that he will return when he can support the rules. One of the main points of difference among the underwriters is regarding the manner in which business shall be transacted in Oakland, Sacramento, Los Angeles and the principal cities around San Francisco. The only money made in the State is made in these places. This is shown by tables of general averages kept by various insurance men.

Magill, Landers and others think that they should be allowed to conduct their business as they please in the cities named; to establish separate offices and to pay any salary they may desire to their agents. The rules of the union do not allow them the free stope they demand, and constant rows are the result. The outcome of the Portland affair will be awaited with considerable interest, for much depends upon it.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 15.—Charges were made early against the participants in last night's fight. As soon as the news of Bowen's death become generally known sports of all kinds began to gather about the second Recorder's court, for it supposed if there were any arrests and arraignments they would be made before Judgs. Aucoin. By noon the large crowd had assembled and the courtroom was liled. Lavigne was the principal in the base, and was arraigned along with his nanager. Sam Fitzpatrick, Jim Hall and Martin Murphy, his seconds, and Billy McCarthy, Albert Spitzfadden, Billy Layton, Bowen's seconds; George Considine, Lavigne was charged with murder, the others being charged as accessories to the art. Sergt. McCabe made the affidavits against them and when they were all arraigned. Judge Aucoin placed Lavigne under $10,000 bonds, and the others under $5000 bonds each. Lavigne wore a sour look. Guilaume went on the bonds of Duffy and Spitzfadden for $5000 each, and they were released. D. O'Mailey signed Lavigne's bonds and the bonds of Billy McCarthy, Sam Fitzpatrick and Martin Murphy.

McCarthy, Sam Fitzpatrick and Martin Murphy.

Lavigne was asked regarding the death of Bowen and the arrest of the participants in the fight. "I regret it very much, indeed." he replied. "Bowen was a good fighter and one of the pluckiest fellows I have ever met. It is a gross injustice to me, however, to say that the diacek-out I gave Bowen caused his death. That blow was hardly a lick at all. It was the force of the fall which killed Bowen."

Billy Duffy said that the affair would came near killing prize-fighting in New Cleans. January 2 was set by Judge Aacoin for the hearing.

But she bore up bravely under the strain, and, with the devotion that and always marked her conduct toward him, she belped the physicians and the riends, who came from all sides, to make he sorely-wounded puglist as comfortable as possible under the tragic circumstances. The physicians who had been called into Bowen's room at the club, accompanied him home, and, reinforced by the family bhysician, remained with him till the end. The Coroner's jury declares that the sause of death was due to concussion of he brain, but failed to determine whether twas produced by Lavigne's blow, or by Bowen's head striking the floor of the ring. Lavigne opened with a left jab on the neck and that blow was not a particularly nard one, but it brought a look of antish to the face of the thoroughly-beaten little man. His mouth was partially men, while his eyes wore a wild, frightneed look. His cheeks were bruised and is lips were puffed out. The tut over the left, eye was the only color a his pallid face. His breath was comba in a short gasps, and, after breathing of a moment he would catch his breath. With wonderful gameness he would not linch from the shower of blows rained spon him and, although his strength was joing, he tried bravely to right back every time the visitor was close enough. Lavigne knew that he could dodge the lows thus attempted, or let 'them land armlessly on him. He was landing on he local man at will. Bowen was stagering to the ropes in a helpless condition and was trying to clinch. Lavigne lanted his left over the heart and, crossing with his right, landed a blow on the felled tree and his head struck the loor heavily. Lavigne walked to his orner, while Duffy counted the ten seconds. The beaten man was picked up imp, and to all appearances lifeless, by its handlers and was carried to his dress-negroom.

Then Hall and Fitzsimmons fought in the same arena, the floor was thickly covred with padding, over which a sheet of anyas had been tightly stretched. Last night, for some unexplained reason, this padding had been removed, and the canvas had been stretched over the bare boards of the stage.

"Had the stage been in this condition when Fitzsimmons knocked out Hall, there appears to be little doubt that Hall would have been fatally injured, and with such a circumstance fresh in their memory, it appears almost unaccountable that the members of the club should have taken such a risk as that to be incurred by permitting men to fight on an unpadded floor. The doctors who were in attendance on Bowen last night said that it was not the blow that had done the mischief, but the striking of his head on the floor which had produced concussion of the brain."

MAYOR FITZPATRICK PERTURBED.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 15.—Mayor Fitzpatrick was a witness of the fight last night, and was much concerned as to Bowen's condition after he had been carried from the ring side. The Mayor granted a permit for the contest and was anxious that there should not be a fatal termination. When Bowen was taken to his home, His Honor had been led to believe that the man's condition had improved and the Mayor went home expecting to learn this morning that no serious consequences were the result. The first act of the Mayor, after reaching his office today was to revoke the permit for the Dempsey-Ryan contest, which was to have taken place tonight. The Auditorium Club had, hewever, already declared the fight off. In speaking of the revocation of the permit, Mayor Fitzpatrick said:

"I do not know what the effect of the death of Bowen will be on puglism in the future. A material point, I should say, would be the actual cause of death which will be decided at the autopsy. If, death was caused by the blow which Lavinge struck, then the sport is fatal, but if death resulted from Bowen's head striking the floor, then death was attributable to a circumstance which can be avoided in the future and the sport is not fatal. I have revoked the permit in order to remove any possibility of a repetition of last night's accident."

Delegates Who Had Cut Their Wis dom Teeth and Would not Bite at the Socialist Plum— Platform Rejected.

Sesociated Press Leased-wire Service.

DENVER, Dec. 15.—A discussion on Plank 10 in the political platform, the Socialistic plank, was resumed in the convention of the American Federation of Labor this forenoon. Delegate Lloyd of Boston moved to re-refer the plank to a subordinate union.

Patrick McBride, secretary of the Mineworkers, said that he was willing to take such action. He was instructed to vote for the plank, but he hoped that if it was voted upon, it would be defeated, "because," he said, "our side can accept the defeat good-naturedly and, from the displays in the convention, I doubt if the other side can."

Treasurer Lemmon supported Lloyd's motion on the ground that the vote of motion on the ground that the vote of many unions on the platform was not a representative one. P. J. McGuire made a strong argument against re-referring. He said the question had made trouble enough in the unions. He was once a Socialist, but had become convinced of the folly of the idea. convinced of the folly of the idea.

Morgan said that McGuire had reflected upon himself. He said he got his first lesson in Socialism from McGuire when he was organizer for the Socialistic Labor Party. "He was in rags," said Morgan; "I was ashamed of his personal appearance." Amid cries of "Shame," he was called to order by the chairman, who ruled that he had forfeited the floor. Morgan appealed from the decision. The chair was sustained.

"Delegate Pomeroy made a vigorous address against Socialism." He said that the great need of this day was the abolition of that un-American erganization, the A.P.A. He strongly advecated the single-tax theory.

Delegate Daley of the Lasters' Union announced that, aithough he was instructed by his union to yote for the "political programme" entirely, the abolition of the preamble he considered re-leased him from the obligation and he would vote against Plank 10.
Delegate Patrick McBride asked the question: "Considering that national delegations have individual autonomy, can this convention obligate them to a platform against the wishes of their members?"
The chair rsked time to consider the question.

against the wisaes of their memoers. The chair saked time to consider the question.

W. D. Mahon of the Street-railway Employees stated that, although he had been instructed to vote for the plank, he should vote against it. He was a Socialist, but had no desire to cram his ideas down anybody's throat and he objected to having his union torn up for the next two years by a useless discussion.

Lee M. Hart of the Stage Employees Alliance announced that, if Plank No. 10 was adopted his union would withdraw from the federation.

The president in answer to McBride's question, said that resolutions passed by the federation, though presumed to be observed, by the integral unions, could not be made obligatory.

Lloyd, who introduced the notion to re-refer, reviewed trades unionism in England. He said: "When American workingmen have secured the unity that exists in England they may begin to talk of a co-operative commonwealth." He referred in detail to the co-operative institutions of England. He said that the in-recess.

When the afternoon session opened the charges preferred against President Gompers by the German Waiters' Union No. 1 and the Bartenders' Union No. 52 of New York, regarding the use of a non-union hall in New York for a dinner to John Burns and Holmes on December 7 last were read.

Burns and Holmes on December 7 last were read.

After hearing the evidence in the case the convention, without one dissenting voice, sustained / President Gompers. In his own defense he reviewed the arrangoments for the dinner to John Burns and David Holmes on December I, in which Clarendon Hall was used. He said that, upon investigation, he found there was not a hall in New York that could be secured that employed union men.

"The whole reason," said Gompers, "that these waiters in Clarendon Hall are called seceders is because they refused to join that corrupt organization known as the Knights of Labor."

The previous question was called up, on the motion to refer the plank relating to the collective ownership of all means known as the Knights of Labor."

The previous question was called up, on the motion to refer the plank relating to the collective ownership of all means of production and distribution by the people to the affiliated organizations to be again voted upon, and it was lost.

The proposition of the government to establish a savings baifs, in connection with the Postoffice Department, was rejected by a large majority, and the question then recurred on the substitute for Plank No. 4, providing for the abolition of the land-monopoly ownership, and substituting occupancy and improvement as the only guarantee of title, and it was adopted. A plank was adopted, favoring the repeal of the seamen conspiracy laws. Delegate Morgan offered an additional plank, providing for the private and corporate ownership of all means of production and distribution, which was laid on the table. A plank was adopted favoring the issuance of all money direct to the people by the government.

The question of adopting the resolutions and indorsing the entire "political platform" was defeated. The result was considered an overwhelming defeat to the socialistic element.

John Burns was introduced, and, in a brief speech, bade the delegates of the convention a formal good-by. He gave the federation a word of advice, and duly-accredited delegates. He stated that he intended to put into book form his impressions of the labor movement in America. He continued:

"The responsibility of the labor leaders in the future is greater than ever confronted the labor leaders in the Old World. The darkest night, remember, always precedes the brightest dawn. One result of this convention must be to approach the nomination of men with a little more tact than has been exhibited in the past."

Mrs. Eva C. Higgins, of the Woman's National Christian Temperance Union, ex-

more tact than the past."

Mrs. Eva C. Higgins, of the Woman's National Christian Temperance Union, extended the greeting of the national convention of the union to the delegates of the American Federation of Labor. She appealed for some expression against the liquor traffic.

liquor traffic.

A resolution introduced and amended that the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor be removed from New York was adopted. The following places were nominated as candidates for headquarters: Washington, Detroit, Indianapolis, Brooklyn and Louiville. Before the vote was taken, the convention adjourned until Monday morning. Washington and Indianapolis are the leading contestants.

Blue-eyed Indians.

(New York Commercial Advertiser:) Redhaired negroes are scarce enough, but an equally curious freak of nature is seen in the Griegos Indians near the City of Mexico. They are light complexioned and the majority have blue eyes and light hair. They dress principally in two shades of blue and their clothing is good and well made and generally ornamented with the bead and silk embroidery of which the Indians are so fond. Their houses are better built and furnished than is usual among Indians, and many have planos and other musical instruments, upon which they play with considerable skill. These Griegos have no commercial or social connections with other tribes, holding aloof from even those who live at the base of the mountain on which their village is situated. They raise their own food, do their own manufacturing, have their own schools, churches and social institutions, and seldom or never, marry outside their own tribe. There is said to be another tribe of fair-haired Indians, who have the appearance of Germans, living in the Sierra Madre Mountains in the State of Durango. MPE Egg Food

One Item of Expense.

(American Economist:) The addition of $100,000,000 to the national debt within ten months is a fair sample of a free-trade "object lesson." It is "a condition" that confronts the people, not "a theory." This addition of debt during ten months of a free-trade administration is at the rate of $10,000,000 a month. It has cost the people $333,333 during each and every one of the three days in these ten months to pay for the privilege of threatming protection. It has cost $13,900 every hour of the ten months; it has cost over $230 every minute; it has cost the country almost $4$ during every second of the ten months. This is only the cost to the people, as represented by the actual increase in the national debt in the sum of almost $4$ during every second of the ten months; over $230 during avery minute, $13,900 every hour, and $333,333 every day of that time. The cost of a course of lectures delivered by a Buffaio lawyer and a West Virginia college professor is certainly considerably more than it is worth, and very much more than the present generation of people will ever pay again. One Item of Expense.

It is Sometimes So.

It is Sometimes So.

(Washington Star:) "I spose yer husband"ll have more time ter tend ter the farm now," eaid the neighbor who had just dropped in. "That's one consolation, even if he is defeated."

"No," replied the candidate's wife. "I thort that way at fust. But Hiram says thet explainin' how he happened ter git licked "I take a heap more of his time than the duties of the office would."

(Fresno Republican:) One of the most disappointing features of President Cleveland's message was his failure to make any suggestions to Congress regarding the Nicaragua Canal. It is to be hoped that Congress will see the question in a different light, and will decline to be guided by the silence of the chief executive.

EMPLOYMENT AGENTS,

Tel. 509.
(Office open from 7 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., except Sundays.)

Have you ever been in our office? If you have been, you will bear us out in what we here say. If you have not, you should call and just see what a hustness we do, and how we do it. Often people in the country with whom we have done business for years have never been into the office. Occasionally a patron of this description calls in and can hardly believe his owheyes. He had always supposed we "did a big business, but had never imagined anything like this." You will find two large waiting-rooms, crowded with people. You will see 8 or 10 men and women, each rushing to his or her utmost, waiting on the people who are pouring in and out of the two entrances like bees at a hive entrance. Here are people from all parts of the country, asking for help; crowds of other meand women with grips in hands. Going and the seed of the country, asking for help; crowds of others are clamoring for places. Others still have just returned from situations with exchequers replenished and smiles on their faces, while others still are just "lying on their oars for a while." looking on. Here comes the messenger boy, with telegrams; there rings the telephone with some urgent order for help, and the mailman comes rushing in with a bundle of letters every two or three hours. To the uninitiated it would appear the personification of disorder, but after a little observation he discovers the utmost order, and that every person working in the office has his especial duty to perform, and does it. If you want help, you will be referred to the head of the department, who handles that kind of help: if you want a situation, you are interviewed by some one who makes the class of situations which you seek a specialty. You will see the stenographer "busy as a bee," taking down the dictations, or rushing them through mail. It would pay you to call and see us; you will be welcome. We are sure that after so

LOS ANGELES IS GROWING FASTER. WE believe, than at any time in her history; people are coming here from all parts of the country; men dissatisfied with the prospects for business in their old homes come here; believing in the future of our city, and anxious for a business and a home amongst us. That Los Angeles is prospering goes without saying. No city in the United States of her population can show, from week to week, as few business failures, and but few cites are without saying the last two years as she has done, while yet her future seems brighted the will afford them. A competency of the great number of people who come here, many desire of people who come here, many desire of people who come here, many desire to remain and embark in some business that will afford them a living and in time a competency. To this class of people, and others, too, of larger means and more ambitious prospects, we address surresies. WE ACR INVESTORS OF APTAL IN LEGITIMATE AND HIGH-GRADE ENTERPRISES AND BUSINESS OPENINGS, and, as such, invite your confidence and patronage. Our aim and intention being to offer nothing that will not stand the most careful investigation OS ANGELES IS GROWING FASTER, WI NESS OPENINGS, and, as such, invite your confidence and patronage. Our aim and intention being to offer nothing that will not stand the most careful investigation and to tell the entire truth with reference to what we do offer. Strangers in our city will consult their interests in doing business with us, and are assured of fair treatment always. O'BRIEN INVESTMENT CO., Bradbury Bldg.

CARMERS AND MERCHANTS BANK OF LOS ANGEL

The National Bank of California is one of the few banks that successfully stood the shock of the late panic and maintained full coin payments right through.

The National Bank of Oalifornia pays no interest on deposits in any form, offers no special inducements for business other than reliability when the customers exercise their right to demand their money.

In the matter of loans it looks more to reliability than high rates of interest, and desires on oans except from good and reliable parties, and then exacts good security, believing that no bank is better or more reliable than its loans

CAMP ON RIO YAQUI (Mexico,) Dec. gated on the west bank of the Kio agui, about thirty miles above its mouth, he houses are built of rough mesquite sats set in the ground, supporting a roof bamboo poles upon which are laid wil-w brush covered with adobe clay. The alls are of bamboo cane poles placed one together in upright position. Occa-onally alender willow takes the place of bamboo, and in instances the walls are plastered with adobe clay both inside and out to keep the wind away, but the plastered houses belong to the better class of citizens. In instances we find walls eighteen inches in thickness, built of adobe brick, indicating the residence

They never build a second story to their houses. Only the wealthy have brick floors. The ground is the floor. To prevent the dust from arising it is occasionally flooded with a few pails of water, which the soil absorbs, leaving the surface hard and smooth. Such as can afford the luxury sleep on canvas cots, but the rule is to spread their blankets upon the ground. In rare cases bed-steads, chairs and tables are among the household effects of the Mexican, and wealth is suggested. Instead of chairs stools are constructed by lashing the ends of sticks to hoops with thougs and stretching raw hide over the top for a seat. Were the other end covered in like manner it would look like a drum. Very few families have cooking stoves. Walls of adobe two feet in length are built about five inches high and twelve inches apart, between which the fire is built and over which the cooking is done, the smoke suffered to pass through the crevices in the walls of the house. Mosquitos keep at a distance while cooking is going on. Beans and tortillas are cooked. Tortillas are panckes made of born or wheat ground upon the metate stone. The tortilia when done is thin. Soda and baking powder are not in time. Drinking water is kept in an ella (o-ya.) a round, earthen pot in the shape of an agg, open at the small end, which is the supper end. The olla is placed between three-forked limbs of a tree that has been selected and cut for that purpose, the tem imbedded in the ground. This vessel is of burned clay and porous. The water filters slowly through it and is aught in an earthen pot of finer material. Sometimes the oils is lased, the evaporation cooling the water in the vessel.

dashed, the evaporation cooling the water in the vessel. The Mexican women are expert in carrying water on the head. They balance an oila holding five gallons of water upon the head with grace and ease, carrying it without the aid of the hand. This seems to be quite difficult on account of the egg-shaped bottom of the vessel. The postoffice regulations in interior towns like Torin are peculiar. It is a tedious difficulty for the uninitiated to find the postoffice. No sign is to be seen. Inquiry brought out the information that the postoffice was in Senor Martinez's store, but life being so brief, and full of harassing care, that my informant had not the heart to impose upon himself such additional duties as were involved in a statement setting forth such facts as comprehended the locality of "Not here. It is the custom. You find it so in every store in town."

A thinly-clad woman, with parched face and claw-like fingers, entered, laying a cent upon the bounter, she asked for lard. The quantity was guessed at, being too small for weight or measure.

A half-naked man came next. Despondency was written upon his countenance. He had but one word to say. Placing 3 cents upon the counter he said "mescal." The whisky was poured into a glass and three swallows completed the transaction. Then he looked up and smiled and walked briskly away. Next came, a pretty little vivacious woman, who fluttered about like a wild bird in a cage, making many purchases, but paying for each article separately.

a wild bird in a cage, making many purchases, but paying for each article separately.

"You see," said the merchant, "they cannot add the several amounts of their purchases together, but know the change full well, and so they pay for each article as they get it. Yes, it takes a little time, but it's the oustom. As a rule, they are honest, but they are very poor. There are but very few to whom I would give credit. They will pay, though, if they can get the money. The poor Mexican pays willingly at the time he makes his purchase. The credit system is bad for both the buyer and seller. I prefer to sell in small smounts for cash."

Upon a pile of stone elevated forty feet above the level upon which the town is built, stands as a monument to the skill and industry of the Yaqui Indians, its builders, an old Catholic church, upon which is inscribed "Ano. D., 1792." Pilars of malbars rock stand upon each side

Should the Council pass the ordinance over the Mayor's veto, it is now too late, to carry out the necessary proceedings to as to hold the election on January 9, the day set for that purpose.

Although some doubt has been expressed as to whether it would be necessary, under the present circumstances, of institute flew proceedings for the silling of an election ordinance, yet the silling of an election ordinance, yet the silling with the subject that it would be amiliar with the subject that it would be a subject that it would

AT THE COURHOUSE. person, and I also find that the meeting of low prostitutes and tin-horn gamblers about this saloon is quite a common occurrence. There is nothing in the facts of the Hildreth robbery thus far ascertained that show the proprietor was a participant in the crime and I do not think that he got a cent of the money of the victim other than that paid for drinks, nor do I think that the said Rivercomb knew that the man Hildreth was to be robbed when he went with the others to the room, nor that he would directly aid such an act. His saloon is, however, very far from what it should be, and he is certainly to blame for permitting such notorious characters to hang around his place.

when pressed in the matter Rivercomb finally gave the names of the parties who were with Hildreth in the room and who got his money, claiming that he had learned the names of the parties since he was first asked about the matter by Attorney House, and that he did not know the names of the parties when first asked, but I think that this is very doubtful. As soon as we learned the identity of the parties, warrants were secured for them, but the detective to whom they were given is not able to find them yet, and thisks that they were told in time to enable them to get out of the city.

"Rivercomb claims in defense of himself that he did not know the notorious charthem to get out of the city.

"Rivercomb claims in defense of himself that he did not know the notorious character of the parties whom he permitted to frequent his saloon, as he has been in the place and the city but a short-time (he has been proprietor of the saloon since October 10 last.) and further claims that if his license is not revoked he will in the future keep disreputable people away from his place, and that he will promise that there will never be another opportunity to complain of his place because of thefts or other violations of the law committed therein.

"The city of Los Angeles would not suffer any loss if the Senate saloon should be closed up, but it is possible that the lesson given the proprietor in this case would be the cause of improving the character of the saloon, if the proprietor is given further license to run his place."

After a brief discussion of the matter is given further license to run his place."

After a brief discussion of the matter it was decided to have a hearing on the charges next Tuesday afternoon.

The protest of R. B. Russell and others against the having of a saloon at Fifth and Los Angeles streets was laid over till Tuesday afternoon.

Sergt. Jeffries and Officer Robbins were present, to be heard in regard to the reports presented by the latter in reference to certain saloons being open when required by ordinance not to have the sale of liquor conducted within them. In the case of Cosgrove & Watson, on North Los Angeles street, it being reported that liquor had been sold there, in violation of the ordinance, hearing was set for Tuesday afternoon.

The reports for nearly all the places were, as has been heretofore stated, to the effect that men were seen going in and out, and, in some cases, the clink of glasses or the sound of loud conversation were in evidence.

Commissioner Bosbyshell was inclined to blame the officer for not attempting to enter the saloons where he heard such noises and saw men coming in and going out.

The other members expressed a differ-out.

The other members expressed a different opinion, and also incidentally remarked they were suspicious that Mr. Bosbyshell did not know much about saloons.

The meeting was adjourned in the midst of the warm argument which ensued.

SECOND TRIAL.

The second trial of the case against Henry Patterson, the A.R.U. engineer, accused of having shot at Engineer J. C. Martin from an ambush, just outside the city limits, on the night of July 12 last, was commenced before Judge B. N. Smith in Department One yesterday.

The defendant was represented by Messrs. R. A. Ling and H. H. Appel, while Deputies M. W. Conkling and Le Compte Davis of the District Attorney's office, conducted the prosecution.

The whole of the morning and part of the afternoon sessions were consumed in the work of securing a jury, the following jurors being finally selected and sworn to try the case: E. K. Alexander, John Eleland, Joshua Dean, Henry O. Dougherty, Alfred H. Edwards, Clinton Heath, Angus Poson, Albert E. Melgs, Sylvester C. Ruddock, E. M. Shlpmah, P. J. McMahon and Claiborne Vaughn.

Very little evidence was introduced on the part of the prosecution, owing to the lateness of the hour in starting, and the lateness of the hour in starting, and the lateness of the strike was stiff in progress on that date, and that a good deal of feeling existed on the part of the strikers on account of his having taken his train, the Santa Barbara local, out. He reliterated his statement made upon the previous trial with reference to the shot being fired as he approached the yard limits, and the breaking of the cab window in front of him by some one who was hidden in a clump of trees near the track. The case will be resumed on Monday morning:

office of Constable at Wilmington township, between Walter Rechtwig and Philiph. Swartz, came up for hearing before Judge Shaw in Department Five, but was disposed of in short order, findings and judgment being ordered for the defendant Schwartz.

The plaintiff, Rechtwig, claimed that, owing to the misconduct of the officers of election in Precincts 1 and 2 of San Pedro, and that of Wilmington, he was defeated by two votes, and he therefore demanded a recount and legal investigation. Upon opening the ballots, over the objections of the defense, and examining them, and hearing the testimony of a man, who was present when the official count was made, Judge Shaw found that no ballots had been rejected as alleged, and that the whole affair arose from an error on the part of one of the clerks, consequently the contest was held to be without foundation.

Johnstone Jones, Esq., having withdrawn as counsel for the defense in the train-robbery cases against Alva Johnson and W. H. ("Kid") Thompson, Judge Smith, yesterday morning, appointed S. A. Garrett and F. S. Adams, Esq., to represent the defendants.

We want to call your especial attention to a few of the lines in which we think we excel.

Books in fine bindings.

Of this line we are especially proud. You will find nothing like it elsewhere. It consists of both sets and single volumes, and all the standard authors are represented. We mention the most prominent: Holmes, Lowell, Longfellow, Whittier, Bry-ant, Howells, Lew Wallace, Tennyson, Scott, Browning, as well as a large number of the lesser lights.

IN HANDY VOLUMES-We have an endless assortment, in beautiful bindings, white-and-gold, half calf, and full levant, and all at prices that cannot be duplicated elsewhere.

Books in sets.

In this line we have all the popular authors represented, such as Holmes Lowell, Irving, Emerson, Hawthorne, Scott, Carlisle, Maryatt, Browning, Dickens, Hume, Hazlitt, Bourriene, Macaulay, etc. We can give you anything from the fine half-calf bindings down to the inexpensive sets bound in cloth, and we are selling them so cheap you will be surprised.

Juvenile books and sets.

In sets we show the popular Sea and Shore stories, Boat-builder's' series, Lake Shore series, Camping Out stories, Green Mountain Boys, Mrs. Whitney's works, Louise Alcott's works, etc. In single volumes for children we have everything that is new and bright, from the beautiful color books down to the cheap board-and-paper, books at prices which will please all.

Episcopal Prayer Books and Hymnals.

STOLL&THAYE

We have the new revised editions only. Our line is the most extensive and varied, running from the beautiful India paper editions, in fine, full levant and seal bindings, to the inexpensive ordinary leather and cloth editions. We can suit all tastes and

The next order of the convention was the club reports. These were very spirited and elicited frequent laughter and applause. They showed that the various clubs are flourishing, and that their members are being well trained in the principles of "this land of the free and home of the brave."

The convention was then favored with another selection by the orchestra of the Los Angeles Lyceum. The Los Angeles Lyceum has acquitted itself finely in entertaining the delegates, and they will for home with pleasant words about its hospitality.

THE BANQUET.

At 5 o'clock the delegates enjoyed the hospitality of the local clubs at a banquet, and a most enjoyable time was had. Numerous toasts were given by Toastmaker Kinney, president of the local club, and the assembly was entertained by the happy responses made thereto.

In the evening the programme was given at the High School and was:

Address of welcome—Los Angeles.
Response—H. W. Hill, Santa Ana.
Installation of officers-elect and attending ceremonies.
Remarks—Col. W. A. Harris.

Address—Principal E. E. Cates.

on its roll, consisting of the flower of the youth of this section.

The following is quoted from the preamble to their constitution:

"The Lyoeum League of America aims to promote ideas and purposes of good citizenship among the young men of the republic. It seeks to cultivate true independence, by training them to think for themselves. It tries to promote political intelligence by making them familiar with the leading issues of our political history. It fosters patriotism by impressing young men with the duties of citizenship."

And the friends of the order think such principles worthy the greatest encouragement.

The convention then proceeded with the election of officers, but the count was not finished at the noon hour.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session opened with a selection by an orchestra composed of Los of $80,000. So far about one hundred inches of irrigation water has been developed. The tunnel has now reached that sect a where the most copious springs are to be found, and the projectors have reason to believe they will develop from 250 to 300 more inches of water in the remainder of their tunneling. The water they are soing to bring to usefulness in irrigation has been running for all time in subterranean streams down across to the country to the seaboard and into the ocean.

Did you ever notice how human nature seems to change as the holiday season approaches? How false pride and dignity slips off from the shoulders of those fashionable people who, at other times, are forever standing upon their p's and q's, and the very best that there is in them comes bubbling to the surface? It's as good as a play to go out upon our streets and watch the happy crowds with streets and watch the happy crows with their bundles come and go; to catch the sound of their happy laughter and merry talk; to see their faces lighted up with benevolent gladness, the sordid man's purse-strings loosened, and the dignified benevolent gladness, the sordid man's purse-strings loosened, and the dignified dames, who, at other seasons, would not be caught carrying never so little a bundle, laden down with purchases and smiling all over at the thought of the happiness which they will impart when those treasures are displayed before the glad eyes of the little ones. I saw one of these same ladies the other day who belongs to the class who would have a spool of thread and a dozen handkerchiefs sent home if she was without her carriage, actually carrying a bundle containing a small express wagon, a wicker cradle, and two large dolls, a couple of blocks to where her carriage stood awaiting her, and she handed them to her coachman with a smile and some light remark that set the smiles to chasing themselves over her face after the merriest of hide-and-seek fashion. I tell you, it made me feel that there is a tremendous amount of good in human nature after all, and if we could only keep it on the surface how much better the world would be for it. Make the world happy and you will make it better.

Will you believe it, I met a wealthy gentleman the other day who has been married twenty-five years, and who had never given his lovely and loyal wife a Christmas present. He was a man of obusiness, and business occupied all his thoughts. He was ambitious for wealth, and to be known as a successful, self-made man, and he had no time, he often remarked, for foolishness. But the other day he seemed to wake up all at once. I think the prattle of some happy children stirred him, as they stood near talking of the gifts that they hoped for, and the "beautiful presents" they were sure their papa would give mamma. "Papa gives mamma so many nice things, I think he must love her awful much, don't you, Freddle?" asked the little golden-hafred tot of her brother.

"Well, now, I'll be blessed if that don't set me to thinking that I'd ought to give my wife a Christmas present. She's been a mighty good quarter of a century since I've made her a Christmas gift! Bless me, I'll do it," he remarked to the Saunterer, and off he started with a beaming face to carry out his good resolutions at once. There will be a happy heart here in this city on Christmas morning, and back to the lovely face a little past middle age will come a look of youth. The roses will glow in her cheeks again, and better to her than all the gifts he brings will be to her the thought of his loving remembrance.

I was on the cable car line on Friday evening on my way down Grand avenue. A gentieman sat beside me, whom I did not know, and he was discussing the political situation with another gentieman, who sat on the seat just behind us. He had been on to Washington, where among others, he had seen Thomas B. Reed, whom, he represented as a blatherskite and a man with the manners of the ordinary, hoodlum, "but," he remarked, "I think there are good men in the Republican party."

dinary, hoodlum, "but," he remarked,
"I think there are good men in the Republican party."

"I don't know about that," responded the gentleman behind him, who evidently ignored the fact that any good thing could come out of this, to him, political Nazareth. These men were Populists, as I gathered from their talk, and their political vision was doubtless blinded by such shining lights as Waite and Lewellyn and Kolb, those heroes of the bloody-bridle type, who would, if they had their own sweet will, plunge the whole land into anarchy and confusion. It is a peculiarity of the Populist that he is politically blind, and has put common sense aside and is running after the mad vagaries of his own fancy. He is the will 'o the wisp that the country will have to tolerate until it can get out of the bogs of misrule and delusive legislation, where the Democratic party has led it. But the Republican party will remedy all this two years hence, when Populism and Cleveland Democracy will be buried past all resurrection.

It will be remembered that he was elected to represent the Young Men's Christian Associations of California at the world's jubilee of that organization, held in London last June. His descriptions of the European countries were very interesting, and his remarks overe listened to with rapt attention by the convention.

The Horse-Bicycle Race.
Weather permitting, the fifty-mile race between Albert Schock, the long-distance champion, and three horses, to be changed at the end of every mile, will be held at Athletic Park this afternoon. As the terms upon which this event has been arranged are much more even than those which prevailed in the previous race, it will doubtless be more exciting, and should attract a larger crowd.

Judging from his previous performance, Schock has a trifle the best of it this time, for even with four horses and as many riders he was only a mile behind in the last race.

vated road has lost heavily, and will not be able to maintain dividends if an improvement does not take place. Just what will be done in either city is not yet known, but it is evident that steam is having a hard battle to maintain its foothold. Strangely enough, this significant state of affairs coincides with the abandonment on several steam railways of short service trains that have been trying to compete with trolley lines, and it is said by those who know that this process is eating like a deep canker into the best earnings of roads enjoying hitherto a large local patronage. The trolley has shown itself cheaper and more flexible. The average of fare on steam roads is two and a quarter cents per mile; for the same money most trolley roads will carry a passenger hearly five times as far in about the same time and put him down at his exact destination. Some steam railway managers talk of fighting; others, more farsighted, are already clearing the way for newer conditions, and it may safely be predicted that our railroad methods, under this pressure, will be remarkably changed during the next five years. One of the electrical journals has recently expressed the opinion that steam railroad organization cannot endure its present heavy rate of capitalization, and a the first break to electricity will be seen in England, where the short roads, dense population and frequent travel are all favorable to the new method of locomotion. PORTABLE ELECTRIC PUMP.

na Greene, in addressing the Institut of: Naval Architects and Engineers recently, said that, had electric motors been in use on board the great English man-of-war Victoria, to close her water-tight doors, she would have been save, when rammed by her sister ship. It took a trained crew three minutes, under normal criditions, to close them; with motors less than sixty seconds would have sufficed. Mr. Greene also stated that on the other big Britisher, Benbow, the hydraulic machinery had been disabled by frost—an unsuspected point of danger—and that electric motors were recommended. On board the United States men-of-war the new departure is already being taken, and motors are advantageously used for drills, pumps, wentilation, operating machine shop, deck hoists, shot whips, etc., and they are coming into use for operating the valve of the steam steering engine, closing doors of water-tight compartments automatically, running lee machinery and many other functions. The little device here shown is a portable electric pump for ship service, which can be set down anywhere and started to work instantly. The wires are assily led to it, and even if broken, the connection can be at once renewed. The little motor is well incased, and can be used in any position, whether to bring a stream on board or to empty a flooded compartment. Mr. Greene says, in general, that, aside from the desirability of the motor as a handy and convenient appliance, it is a vast improvement to have the small electric wires in place of the Architects and Engineers reently, said that, had electric motors bee

It obviates the necessity for frequent washing, a process that does not tend to strengthen the hold of the limited disconfict and disaster.

In the meantime, despairing of such unlikely achievement, some advanced workers, like Tesia, using high potential currents, are experimenting with lamps that have incandescent buttons, or bars, and with lamps that glow with pure phosphorescent gleam. These latter are said to be wonderfully economical of current when very small, but to fall off heavily in efficiency as they increase in size. An abundant reward awaits genius here, and electricians, watching the continued improvements in gas, await anxiously the production of the lamp which shall make their light not only the best, as it is now, but the cheapest.

THE TELEPHONE FOR ELECTION RETURNS.

The value of the telephone was strikingly shown during the recent election, when in the large cities the results in the different districts were telephoned in to headquarters as soon as known. In this way the results became public at an early hour. All such innovations make for pure elections, for if the news is sent in at once by apparatus promptly available for the purpose there is less excuse than ever for holding back the returns so that they can be fixed and doctored to meet the requirements of an adverse vote. The suggestion is made that hereafter the long-distance lines should be more freely availed of, so that back-country regions may not come in as disturbing factors after every other partias shown its hand and accepted what it believes to be the verdict. For such emergencies the telegraph is decidedly too slow and old-fashloned.

PHOTOGRAPHIC ELECTRIC LIGHTS.
Rankin Kennedy in a paper on the use of the photographic electric light, says that although the electric light has done good service to the photographer in the past, it will have to give way to the arc light in the higher fields of artificial light photography. Artificial light varies much in quality, and the photographer seeks, and the photographer seeks, and the light varies much in quality, and the photographer seeks, and with the least labor and trouble. It is a familiar fact that all ordinary lights are made up of seven or more different colored series of rays, some being bluish, some yellowish like gas and the incandescent electric light. The arc light is very rich in the blue and violet rays on which the photographer so much depends to do his best work, while, it is powerty stricken in reds and yellows, which, however, do not produce any effect on the photographic plate. The incandescent light has very little of the blue and the violet rays, and, according to measurements made by Mr. Kennedy, the arc light contains 30 per cent. more photographic or actinic rays than the incandescent light of the same illuminating power. To illustrate the value of the respective lights for this purpose. Mr. Kennedy took PHOTOGRAPHIC ELECTRIC LIGHTS.

COMING DEVELOPMENTS IN ELECTRICAL RAILROADING.

Portable Electric Pump—The Telephone for Election Returns—Half-reflector Shades—Photographic Lights.

When the elevated railroads in New Tork came into existence, it was believed that the revenues of the horse-car lines would suffer. For a time they dig, and then slowly recovered as the population became denser. A similar experience was had in Brooklyn. But the last few years have seen a most extraordinary revolution. The horse-car lines in Brooklyn adopted the trolley system, and drew away travel to such an extent that the elevated roads were barely able to pay taxes. In New Tork the cable was introduced, and for the first time in its history the elevated road has lost heavily, and will not be able to maintain dividends if an improvement does not take place. Just what will be done in either city is not yet known, but it is evident that steam is hav-

HALF-REFLECTOR SHADES.

One of the most popular shades designed for concentrating the main body of the light from an incandescent lamp in any particular direction, is a newly-patented green and white porcelain half-globe. The two sheets of porcelain are flashed together, forming, apparently, a solid piece of material, the outside of which is green and the inside white. The white surface has great reflecting power, while the green breaks the intensity of the light and tempers it agreeably for the eye. The advantage of this shade is that it permits of soft and subdued tone, or of the utmost vantage of this snades is that it permits of soft and subdued tone, or of the utmost brilliancy. One useful modification of this improved appliance is a desk light, which, when not in use, slides into the center pigeon-hole of an ordinary desk. When it is wanted the mere act of drawing it out of its resting-place turns on the current. The deek cannot be shut until the lamp has been pushed back into the pigeon-hole, and the act of returning it breaks the circuit, and so puts out the light. The half-shade throws the light downward, and distributes it on the desk, just where it is needed.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

Some of the Holiday Novelties Now Appearing in the Shops.

[From a Special Contributor.] The shops are filled with Christmas wares and gifts for the Yule tide. Naturally the rush is not as great as it will be later on, for most women love to pro-crastinate about these things, looking and deliberating to their heart's content before friends are many, and presents must be given, this matter of selection is a very serious question. It is rather a wise thing, therefore, to run over some of the many novelties that are brought out, two weeks st works in the newest bindings, barring, of course, sensational literature, it being an unwritten law of the etiquette of giving that volumes easily obtainable in paper cover for 17 to 20 cents are not suitable for presents. And a book should be selected with more care than a sliver set.

FOR ALL "THE KING'S DAUGH-TERS."

Mrs. Margaret Bottome, President of "The King's Daughters."

(The "Common Sense of Christmas Gifts," in Demorest's Magazine for December:) In undertaking to give these opinions regard-ing Christmas gifts, I believe that Demoring Christmas gifts, I believe that Demor-est's Magazine is doing good work. There are thousands of people just now to whom the reflection of the approach of Christmas time is laden almost with horror. This is certainly a time for a reform movement in matter of Christmas gifts. I speak from my heart on this subject, as I have spoken from my heart in writ-

as I have spoken from my heart in writ

as I have spoken from my heart in writing upon it for years. I believe that in the great tide of extravagance and competition in the exchange of Christmas gifts, we have lost all sight of the real sentiment of the custom, and are giving now from the pocket, instead of from the heart. The most deplorable fact is that they who make expensive Christmas presents look for a return in gifts, if not actually in money.

This miserable feeling in reflecting upon the reproach of Christmas does not prevail among the poorer people, but among the comparatively well-to-do. These pecple scrape, together every cent and bankrupt themselves for the privilege of giving presents indiscriminately to every Tom. Dick and Harry. Now, all this is wrong. As I have said, reform is needed. I actually believe that it will soon have to be made a distinct reform measure. In Switzerland it is considered bad form to give presents worth more than 3 francs. That's an excellent custom, worthy of emulation.

give presents worth more than 3 francs. That's an excellent custom, worthy of emulation.

What should be given as presents at Christmas-tide? The costilest things that money can buy? Not a bit of it. A simple little note, written by one's own hand and couched in terms of kindliness that will touch a responsive chord in the heart of the recipient is a better Christmas present than something that costs enough money to bankrupt the giver for elx months. As Emerson says, "The gift should be part of the giver." Therefore, young women making gifts might paint something, embroider something, make anything with their own hands, that may be called part of themselves. In their own way, young men, too, can give something which is a part of themselves, providing it is given in the true spirit, even though it is bought with money—money which they themselves have carned.

I sometimes think we shall actually lose Christmas, for the reason of this very excess in the giving of presents. New Year's I sometimes think we shall actually lose Christmas, for the reason of this very excess in the giving of presents. New Year's has been lost to us. I remember in my girlhood days how I used to enjoy the old Knickerbocker custom of receiving one's friends in the most simple way and having them partake informally of simple refreshments. But now all that is changed. Today it seems to be the custom for callers to go where the finest banquet is served. I sincerely hope that these words will be considered, that in their serious consideration extravagance in the matter of Christmas gifts will be changed to economy, and that the real sentiment of giving presents on the birthday more important than all others will be saved to us.

THE BALLAD OF MONK JULIUS

AN ALAMO HERO.

Col. Bowie, After Whom the Bowie . Knife was Named.

I From a Special Contributor. a safe wager that nine out of every eleven boys who are proficient in the use of a bowle knife, have not the slightest idea where the instrument got its name. Col. Bowie ol Texas fame gave the knife one must needs think of the battic of Alamo, that heroic fight in which our American boys and girls seem to think ro little and half of them know nothing whatever. They read how the brave sodilers fought and held the pass of Thermopylae, but they seldom think of how a mere handful of men defended the Alamo Mission. How they dropped fighting on their knees and then died facing the foe.

If you should go to the historical city of San Antonio in Texas, you will see the old mission building standing with battered, bullet-pierced walls, a monument to the 172 heroes of 26. Behind these walls the most important battle in the war between Mexico and Texas was fought. That was when Santa Ana was President and the Texans were fighting for their independence. Here it was that Col. Bowie ended his brave life, dying with his boots on and fighting under the most terrible odds. The story is this, and every American child should know it by heart, that he may tell it with pride when other natitions are talking of their great deeds:

One hundred and forty-hve men under Capt. Travis, a young man of 28, were holding the town of San Antonio against Gen. Santa Ana and 4000 men. They were the only defenders of the town an were esconced in the old mission of the Alamo. Davy Crockett was also with them and Col. Bowie, who was wounded and stretched out on his cot. Of artillery they had only fourteen pieces.

Santa Ana demanded surrender, but the little garrison held out for ten days, skirmishing secretly for food and water. Every shot sent out of the mission house told, but not one of the Alamo heroes were hurt. Patience and strength, however, were being rapidly exhausted. Some of the little band were falling sick, others were deeperate. Reinforcements had been appealed for, but none had come. Col. Lamein with 300 men and four-pieces of artillery had started in answer to the appeal, but had put in somewhere for fresh water and food supplies.

At last Capt. Smith joined the exhausted band, with thirty-two men. Three days after, Gen. Santa against the wall surrenders only when run through and through.

The great battle is over. The Mexicans have won. Out of the 172 Texans are 172 dead. No Spartans were braver and more tenacious, for they killed 522 of their enemies and wounded 500 more. Texas, though, was finally freed, and whenever great deeds thrill young boys' hearts, they should think of that splendid piece of American daring and say as Houston said to his men: "Remember the Alamo."

Does its Work.

(St. Nicholas:) It is a cellar fire—a bad one—and in a factory. Clouds of dense black smoke pour up from the the basement and out of every crevice around the big folding-doors that form the entrance. Bits of falling glass tell us that the pressure of smoke and of the gas generated by the combustion going on within the building is beginning to break the windows in the upper part, and if they are not active the flames will get the better of us. Our foot of the stairs. A battalion-chief, in command on the pavement above, seeing our position, shouts, "Here! A man hurt! Down in the basement!" In a second a dozen brave fellows dash down the steps, and, lifting up our injured comrade, carry him tenderly up to the street, and then over to one of the patrol-wagons, where, with plenty of freah air, and brisk rubbing, he is soon brought to his senses.

WOMEN AND FOOTBALL.

The Girl of This Century Should Possess Strong Nerves.

The Girl of This Century Should Possess Strong Nerves.

(Harper's Bazar:) If training and custom have any influence, the girl of this nineteenth century should possess strong nerves. The tendency of the age is to develop muscle rather than the graceful. Nowhere is this fact so clearly demonstrated as in the college town, where one hears the word "teams" used incessantly, and where to hint that one knows nothing of football is simply to bring down contempt upon one's head. Fifty years ago a college youth was given to sentimentality. He wore his hair long, and he wrote verses, he took but little exercise, except possibly on his horse, and he was a student, or he assumed the manners of one. It was the fashion in college then for a man to be learned, and the valedictorian or the poet of his class was honored and respected. The sons of these men now wear their hair long, but for a very different reason, namely, as a protection to their heads, so that in playing the great game blows will fall upon them with less serious effect. If it is imperative that our boys should have to go through all this training to obtain that most tremendous virtue, "pluck," of which we hear so much, let them by all means do so, but why expect us to witness the disagreeable process? Why is it not equally proper for women to attend dog-fights, or cock-fights, or prize-fights." Objections are often made against woman's adopting a dress which nearly resembles a man's, and also for girls and boys to play games together. It is urged that these have the result of making the girl less womanly, and the boy less gallant; and yet these same superfeminine girls are expected to enjoy any exhibition of brute force, and to inspire a fondness for it, lending refinement to the game by their presence, and encouragement to the player by their applause.

It is distinctly "unfashionable" to cry down woman's presence on these occasions, but it is a point they one of provent hearts, do not enjoy it. Others have reluctantly confessed to me that it is altogether a confessed to me that it is altogether a cultivated taste; that the first one or two experiences were simply dreadful, making them feel faint and sick, but by schooling themselves to it and by frequent attendance they had at last reached a point where it gave them great satisfaction and pleasure. Is it worth while for us to endure this painful method for the sake of the pleasure which ensues? Would not our boys play just as well if we were not looking at them? And, after all, is it womanly and sweet and refined and gentle for us to sit calmly and stoically by while possibly some boy is carried off the field, a poor, limp-looking creature, perhaps badly injured, we in the meantime joining in the vociferous applause which greets the victorious side?

If young women are becoming less romantic, less domestic and more progressive and assertive, has not the football game had its influence in this direction? We women all worship in men courage and physical strength, and possibly the men admire in us the qualities which they do not so generally possess, physical weakness and moral strength.

A HISTORIC BALLOT BOX.

The Way it was Done in Early California Days.

(formia Days.)

(From "Vigilance Committee of '56" in December Overland:) As the greater amount of work which came before the committee had special reference to ballot-box frauds, the modes of manipulation, and the actors in these frauds, the accompanying ballot-box cut, has especial significance. It shows how glaring were the outrages committed on honest voters by a class of men who should have been strung up to the nearest lampapost, instead of receiving the conservative punishment of banishment. The ballot-boxes were arranged with chambered sides, concealed springs, and slides. Before any election it was decided by the ruling political powers who should be ruling political powers who should be ruling political powers who should be properly folded tickets of their favorite candidate. When votes were nearly all counted, and it was seen that the opponent of the favorite was likely to have the most votes, it was only necessary to spring the silde give the box an accidental tan and of the favorite was likely to have the most votes, it was only necessary to spring the slide, give the box an accidental tap and down from the chambered sides would come a given number of tickets, all of which were counted, and the favorite, of course, elected. A number of these boxes fell into the hands of the committee, when the plans of working were fully exposed. This kind of work had been carried on for a long time, and at every election. Casey wind of work had been carried on for a long time, and at every election. Casey was elected supervisor, through even a more glaring fraud than this, as was reported at the time.

"When they commenced counting the votes Casey found his opponent, Yankee Sullivan, had been stuffing too strong. So Casey had tickets printed in his own name and caused the inspectors to put them in the ballot-box, and declared him (Casey) elected."

Irving M. Scott for Senator.

Irving M. Scott for Senator.

After all has been said and done, the election is over and people breathe free once again. California has a Democratic Governor and a Republican State ticket, but what is more important to the Republicit party is the election of a Republican Legislature, thereby insuring the election, we trust, of Irving M. Scott to the United States Senate.

If a State has two men in the Upper House of whom she is proud, and feels she can trust, that State is in a position to hold up her head and ask for a place in the governmental affairs equal to its representatives' standing among their collegaues in the Senate, and it will be granted without demur.

Nevada has for years far exceeded her proper station, taking into consideration her sparse population and desert land.

She has ranked with New York and Pennsylvania. It is a tribute to her Senators Stewart and Iones who are acceptable and to see the senators.

She has ranked with New York and Pennsylvania. It is a tribute to hor Senators. Stewart and Jones, who are national leaders and recognized statesmen. The Republican party of California turns to Mr. Scott as the Democratic party would have turned toward Foote had it been successful, and the people of California applaud in the one case as they would in the other. An able man is above party.

Do Women Voters Boodle? Do Women Voters Boodle?

(Providence Journai:) Mrs. Waite of Colorado, wife of the defeated Governor, brings a very serious charge against the women voters, whose acts ahe has hately repudiated with so much energy. She says that they sold their votes. And what did they sell them for? Why, for a package of chewing gum and a carriage ride? Who will talk about the purity of politica in connection with the suffrage for women? It is bad enough to sell votes; the wicked men do that, but to be satisfied with chewing gum in payment indicates a degree of moral turpitude which the worst critics of the sex would hardly have believed.

The wisest often place implicit faith in the reality of dreams. The belief that "dreams come true" is not a modern superstition. It is almost as old as man. Both biblical and secular history teach us that dreams foretoid coming events. The interpretation of dreams was part of the duties of the sages; and the best-interpreter was the favorite of his royal master. It is only a few centuries ago, that dream reading was counted among the sciences. It is said that even Napoleon the Great was a firm believer in dreams, and shaped was a firm believer in dreams, and shaped his conduct by them. Many of us have had at least, singular experiences as to dreams, and the incident that I am about to relate is an absolute occurrence, strange as it may seem.

Some years ago, the writer was stopping temporarily in a small town in the mining region of Northern Michigan. One evening, seated with others around the hotel stove, for it was a cold whiter night, the conversation drifted to the subject of dreams. One of the party whom I will offer the conversation drifted to the subject of dream. One of the party whom I will offer the conversation drifted to the subject of dream. He had been in Chicago several days in the interest of his firm, when it became escaraty for his immediate departure to New Orleans. So suddenly and unexpectedly was the journey decided upon, that he had no time to engage a sleeping berth, and was obliged to travel all the way south in the ordinary passenger coach.

Before reaching New Orleans it became and the same of the seat, where he was sitting. He arrived early in the morning, and after breakfasting at the St. Charles Hotel, he sauntered out to visit the jewelers.

In attempting to display his diamonds, which were, as is susual, in small packages of white tissue paper, and all inclosed in a large envelope, he discovered that they were gone. He searched pocket after pocket, but all in vain. He returned to the St. Charles and examined his baggage, After the seath of the s forts had been futile. It was nearly noon, and they were about to abandon the search, when the darky called out, holding up a pointed stick with which be had been working, on the end of which was an envelope similar in size and appearance to the one sought for, but much stained and crumpled. It did not take Mr. Jones long to satisfy himself that it was the long-lost packet, and after rewarding the men, as promised, he examined the parcels separately, and found that every stone was there, save a small diamond of little value as compared with the rest.

With a light and happy heart he telegraphed to New York that the lost diamonds were found, and ever since has been a firm believer in the efficacy of dreams.

The Worst of All.

The Worst of All.

(Washington Star:) Of the many improper and oppressive combinations acapital with which this nation is afficient none is in worse odor just now than the Sugar Trust. Admittedly guilty of offences odious in the sight of all honest men, the Sugar Trust now seeks to add to its profits by heartlessly throwing out of employment a large number of people; for by the decrease in production will come an increase in the price of sugar. The shutting down of the refineries in New York, Beston and Philadelphia means a cheeries winter for quite two hundred and fifty thousand people; for the number of persons employed in the establishments in queestion is not less than fifty thousand. It is not improbable that the trust has taken this inhuman way of arguing with Congress as to what the trust believes would be the folly of agitation favorable to free sugar. There has of late been a great awakening as to trusts, and, while the day is not yet here in which legislation of the most rabid anti-combination sort is to materialize, that day is, neverturely as is being practiced by the Sugar Trust will materially hasten its coming.

A Kansas Congressman Believes This Necessary, and Also Silver. HOLTON (aKn.,) Dec. 1.—The Republian party should continue to stand for a

They should provide for the coinage and use of American silver as money, and should stop the fraudulent reduction of soldiers' pensions heretofore granted.

The chief causes of Republican success are the business incompetency of the Democratic party, as demonstrated by the present administration, and the recognized legislative ability of the Republican party.

Thomas B. Reed of Maine should be elected Speaker of the Fifty-fourth Congress, without the formality of a caucus. If it could be done simply by counting a quorum and declaring Reed elected, it should be.

I am for the "Czar" for Speaker of the next House. There is no other name to conjure with.

I think one of the leading causes that brought about our recent victories is the deeply-rooted desire in the people for good, honest administration of public affairs. This impulse is largely common to the rank and file of all parties.

The foreign policy of the administration looks to the people not only as puerile, but un-American and dishonest.

Let the Republicans strike for good, honest government and work for it in a straightforward way, and success will surely reward their efforts.

to the policy that it has advocated in the past. I do not believe that the "McKinley bill" was in every respect perfect; but I think it was on the right lines.

The Republican party should take a liberal stand on the silver question, and provide for the freest possible use of it consistent with a sound and stable currency. The Republican party should advocate the most rigid economy in our expenditures; the country has suffered severely the past two years, and there ought to be retrenchment in every direction.

I believe that the chief cause of Republican success was the utter failure of the Democratic party to meet the demands of the people, and its manifest incompetency to grasp the situation. This, added to the prostration in business and the hard times which followed as a result of their inability to deal properly with the great questions of the hour, caused the people all over the country to turn for relief to the Republican party. In this State it was a reguldation of the wild theories of the Populists, and a condemnation of their administration of the affairs of the State.

The Republican party can only hope to remain in the ascendency by proving itself worthy of the trust that has been reposed in it.

I take it for granted that Mr. Reed will be the unanimous choice of the party for Speaker of the next Congress.

I regard the action of the Democratic party in Congress on the tariff question as the chief cause for its failure to receive support from the people in the late elections, but its inability to administer the government in a general way contributed to the same 'result. This, in connection with the record of the Republican party, which so strikingly contrasts with the record of Democracy, has, in my judgment, been the chief cause of Republican success.

The well known fact that the Republican party, while in power, has never been found wanting in any emergency, caused the people to turn instinctively to it at this time. There was especial reason for this in view of the almost uniform Democratic incompetency of the past two years.

the Democratic idea of "maguanimity to all the world."

Our people want to receive higher wages, to live better and to have more leisure for the enjoyment of the good things of life than can be obtained in the older countries, or in competition with their poorer-paid labor.

Congress should remember that uncertainty is the great disturber of business. I think that the Republican party should announce that its policy will be to make no further general changes as may be necessary to correct the inequalities and wrongs of the Wilson bill.

When the friends of American labor shall come into power, as they will in 1887, in the three departments of our national government, American capital and labor will be united for the promotion of the general good.

also be desirable to establish a permanent headquarters.

Thomas B. Reed will be undoubtedly the Speaker of the Fifty-fourth Congress. His election will be conceded without contest. The chief cause of Republican success in 1894 is the manifest want of ability on the part of the Democratic party to properly manage the affairs of this great nation, the paralysis of business all over the country brought about by the Democratic threat of free trade and the long delay in passing a revenue bill, and the bill finally passed placing a tax upon sugar at the instance of the Sugar Trust, causing the destruction of reciprocity and the opening up of our markets to foreign agricultural products from Mexico, Russia and other countries. In my judgment the party, to regain ascendancy, must readjust the tariff so as to raise ample revenue, including a strong provision for reciprocity; adjust in some fair manner the currency question, and deal liberally with the old soldiers.

Silver Needed for Cause. THE COUNTRY HAS GROWN AND RE-QUIRES A FULLER CURRENCY SUP-PLY.

CHARLESTON, (S. C.,) Dec. 1.-It my conviction that our party should beat no retreat on the tariff and honest election principles, because they stand upon the eternal basis of truth. As the Amer-ican people become more and more en-lightened, they will become stronger bulwarks of defense for the party advocating honest, economic laws. It will be the height of wisdom for our party to assume the position of friendship to a carefully height of the position of friendship to a contage of guarded resumption of the free coinage of sliver.

It must be admitted that the amount of money in the country is inadequate to do its business to the advantage of all classes, and that sliver, with some intrinsic value, owing to the inadequacy of the amount of gold, is the best substance with which to increase the circulating medium.

As Republican success so largely depends upon the education of the masses, I think that the maintenance of a permanent bureau or headquarters for the dissemination of information and the education of the masses a very wise party policy.

"Czar! Tyrant!"

SO REED HAS BEEN STIGMATIZED, BUT IN HIS WAKE ARE FOLLOW-ERS. SPRINGFIELD, (Mass.;) Dec. 1.-I shall SPRINGFIELD, (Mass.) Dec. 1.—I shall vote for Mr. Reed as Speaker and I assume every other Republican will. For years the Democrats denounced him as "czar" and "tyrant," and with every appearance of sincere and even frenzied conviction stigmatized his rules as unfair and unconstitutional, but with a characteristic versatility that always raises the query whether they have any real prin-fair and unconstitutional, but with a characteristic versatility that always raises the query whether they have any real principles, they at once embraced, when in power, what they had anathematized when in opposition and gave to Mr. Reed that sincerest flattery of servile imitation and to his rules that best vindication—adoption. So today the rules which his courage and a genius created have the indorsement of both parties, and it would be ungrateful and unnatural not to again intrust to him their enforcement.

As to tariff legislation, I think the position of the Republican party should be "masterly inacticity." There will be a Democratic President and, although he could not denounce any tariff bill we might pass more roundly than he did the one passed by his own party, yet in our case I fear his courage would be displayed in deed as well as word, and his denunciation be followed by a veto rather than tacit approval. So I do not think we should waste labor in constructing a bill merely that it may be vetoed.

There is another reason to postpone a tariff bill. In three years we shall know more than now. The present bill will have been tested, we shall know what schedules are sufficient and what need alteration. We are not wedded to any special rates, are not a party of theorists, but experimenters. We study markets, not maxims; facts, not theories, and are always ready to learn from experience, whether from adversity or prosperity, from our adversaries or ourselves. We recognize, too, the value of stability and permanence. Therefore I think tariff legislation should be postponed until the Filty-fith Congress.

The cause of Republican success I believe to have been the universal diagust with Democratic incompetency, intensified by "hard times," and the party's inevitable failure to fulfill the reckless and inconsistent promises with which they purchased power.

Fifth—The country became satisfied that Democracy was an experiment without leadership, ability or certainty of policy.

All the Republican party has to do is to continue its organization, begin from this hour to guard all weak places, pursue in the next Congress a conservative course on the tariff and we will break the solid South, and put many of the Southern States, in the Republican column.

Not another issue must be thrown into the campaign.

We won our late victory because the Democratic party disappointed the expectations of both the Republicans and the Democrats of the country. It has proved worse than the Republicans declared it to be, as to every duty devolving upon it and every expectation the Democrats had formed of it. While the favor of the people for a protective tariff was the main cause, the Democratic party has scarcely attempted a right thing, and every right thing it has attempted has been attempted in a wrong way.

The Republican party is not in the habit of making a platform by which to secure victory and disregarding its provisions when success is assured, and this, in my judgment, is no time to begin; leave that to the party now in power.

The tariff has been the issue in my can-vass; no other question has received any considerable attention.

You ask, "Are you willing to inform me who your choice is for speaker of the Fitty-fourth Congress?"

Off & Vaughn Drug Company, THE OLD ESTABLISHED AND POPULAR PRICE DRUGGISTS.

Corner Fourth and Spring Streets.

REALLY phenomenal success has attended our efforts to give the public POPULAR PRICES on PROPRIETARY SPECIALTIES. This is due to the inherent worth of our goods, backed by the A use of original and effective methods of advertising. We have demonstrated to the people that we do exactly as we claim. Our determination to establish a new schedule of prices for goods in our line has had many imitators, and OLD and NEW firms are seeking to take to themselves the credit of having 'broken the combine in the drug business"; but Off & Vaughn Drug Company were the first to prove their rights as the original movers in this matter. We have not contined our POPULAR PRICES to a few Patent Medicines, but have made a reduction all along the line. We conduct our business on the same liberal plan as we do our advertising. We are leaders, not imitators. Following up our well-established methods, we again add a new feature to our already acknowledged reputation for POPULAR PRICES, and place before the public this advertisement as the best evidence of an intention to remain as we have always been—the people's druggists and popular-price pharmacy. All the goods offered below are the most popular and time-tested articles in their line. They are also such goods as the people are daily in need of, and now for the first time are offered for sale at such low prices—many of them will make a fine holiday gift, and would be appreciated far beyond much of the trash usually invested in for such purpose.

No Prize Packages,

Or gaudy Souvenirs, will be offered by this house to induce patronage. Every inducement we shall make to the public will be in the nature of a discount—the only legitimate method of increasing business. We operate on the principle that customers would rather have the advantage of a cash saving of from 10 to 25 cents on a purchase, than to pay that much more and receive some useless souvenir in its stead. Any premiums we shall give will, therefore, be in reduced prices. Remember that Off & Vaughn Drug Co. will never offer any premiums or souvenirs as a means of catching trade, but we will always give popular prices for first-class goods.

It Is Still Onl

Our popular sale of Syringes and Hot-water Bags is still going on. The prices remain the same—50c, 75c, 85c and $1. Remember we do just as we say in this, as in all other things.

THE REVIVAL MEETINGS CON-TINUE TO MAKE CONVERTS.

A Pleasing Concert—The Dedication the Throop Memorial Or-gan—New G. A. B. Offi-

PASADENA, Dec. 15.—(Special Correspondence.) An appreciative audience attended, the concert at the Universalist Church Friday evening, on which occasion the public was for the first time permitted to hear the fine, new organ which has just been placed in that edifice. The organ was played in a masterly manner by Dr. Oliver L. Austin, Katherine McDowell Wilson and Duncan S. Merwin, each of whomegava two numbers, which displayed not only the skill of the performers, but the wonderful tones of the new instrument, which has a scope unequaled in this section of the country. The Acolian Club, composed of sixteen ladies, under the leadership of Prof. O. Stewart Taylor, sang two numbers and their melody captured the hearers. Solos were sung by O. W. Kyle, Mrs. W. B. Clapp and Charles L. King, all of them given exceedingly well. A flute solo by M. M. Harris also elicited much applause, but the warning, "No encores," printed on the programmes was scrupulously adhered to. The audience was on the programmes was scrup-adhered to. The audience was andled by Mr. Bassett's corps of buse ushers.

THE DEDICATION OF THE THROOP MEMORIAL ORGAN. The following poem will be recited today at a dedication ceremonies of the Universalist

(Prelude.)

And pleads a blessing for the days to come.
Loud let the music roll, for blood and tears,
For clash of arms, for the alarms and fears of stress and tempest all have passed away,
And in a newer, purer, better day,
We stand upright, seeing with clearer eye
Our nation's hope, our eduntry's destiny.

Then let the Music swell, and as it falls
Soft as pervading light within these walls,
Lo! there the holy grail of memory
Descends enwrapped in waves of harmony.
We know He hears the undertone of love;
We know He sees our spirits, reverent, move
Back o'er the path He with such honor trod
Until He fell asleep in arms of God.
We know He reads the wondrous mystery
Of Life, and Death, and of Eternity.

(Finale, instrumental.)

Praise God! thou metal from the depths of earth.

Praise God! insensate wood, that had thy birth
In the dark mold, for Destiny
Hath granted boundless favor unto thee.
Like man, the humble produce of the Past,
Thou dost appeal unto a Future vast;
Like man's, thine every feeble, faitering heart-fone.

Stirs pulsing echoes 'round God's very throne.

THE REVIVAL. Another targe audience gathered at the Tabernacle last evening. Miss Berry of San Francisco occupied the first thirty minutes of the service, speaking in the of San Francisco of the service, speaking in the minutes of the service, speaking in the interests of the extension of missions. She told of the hardships of missionaries, of the terrible superstitions they have to contend with in China and India, and contend with in China and India, and showed that we need the Savior here, so that we may do and give more for the salvation of those in the far heathen lands. Mr. Yatman began an earnest personal talk by saying that years ago the wise men of Greece had this saying. "Consider the end," and then asked the audience to consider where they would be 100 years hence. No one present could expect, to live that long. The greatest thing that a person could do, would be to give body and soul to God, and work for the salvation of others. Many persons were deeply interested. Seven penitents were at the altar and five others asked for prayers.

SOLDIERS' HOME.

A Visitor's Sudden Call—Fire Brigade and Other Notes.

SOLDIERS' HOME, Dec. 14.—(Special Correspondence.) John A. Kuken of San Diego arrived at the home December 12, for the purpose of installing the officers of the newly-organized encampment of the Union Veterans' League. He was a sick man when he reached the home, and was sent to the hospital, where he died on Thursday. The post to which he belonged in San Diego was communicated with and the remains were sent there Tor burial.

Meantime, the new encampment will not be in thorough working order until a dispensation is received from headquarters, authorizing some member to install the officers, which will probably occur within the formight. The encampment is fully organized, except for installation.

The recently-organized fire brigade, comprising the company captains, a chief, four assistants and 125 members, meets regularly every alternate Monday evening, for consultation and drill. Monday evening last the brigade surrendered use of Assembly Hall to the meeting by Bishop Nichois. The new pipes are nearly laid now, and fire protection for the home buildings will be well perfected by the end of the present month.

The membership of the home continues at high-water mark. The roll is: Present, 1314; absent on furlough, 243; total, 1556.

Gen. Breckinridge concluded his investigation into home affairs, and left for the East early in the week. He made many friends while bere, and if he is not prepared to give the management a clean bill of health, he left no hints any where to the contrary.

There have been no deaths of home members for the week past.

The contracts for supplies for the three months following January 1 next have just been let. As a rule, the home secures its needed articles at its already satisfactory low prices.

John A. Spring, a veteran from Tucson, has been at work for some time upon a new drop curtain and a set of scenery for the Assembly Hall stage. When completed, they will add greatly to the attractiveness of the room. It i announced for 10 o'clock tomorrow (Saturday) morning.

Bowen, from the vicinity of Prairie City, Iowa, will arrive in Pomona Saturday to spend the winter. They are friends of Capt. Ira F. Draper and family, now of this city, but formerly of that State.

SANTA MONICA.

A Small Fire-Many Entertainments.

Other News.

SANTA MONICA, Dec. 15.—(Special Correspondence.) Al Smith's grocery, on the corner of Utah avenue and Fourth street, had a close call by fire this mornstreet, had a close call by fire this morning. Near the Fourth-street door, in the rear of the store, oil and gasoline had soaked the floor considerably, and some one dropped a parior match, and then, about 7 o'clock Saturday morning some one stepped on the match, and the concussion did the rest. An alarm brought the fire boys, but a few pails of water headed off the conflagration before either building or stock had been seriously damaged. The loss is covered by insurance. The balance of this month is well bespoken for various entertainments. Blind spoken for various entertainments. Blind Tom is billed for December 20. On the same evening begins a three night's bazir by the ladies of the Episcopal Church, a literary and musical programme for two

[From Our Own Correspondent]

It will be a surprise to many to know that there is a strong Buddhist revival going on in the Japanese empire. The church has been stirred up by the in-vasion of the missionaries, and, within recent years Buddhist papers have been organized, and the Japanese press is full articles about religious matters. A logical course in the Imperial University at Tokyo, and some of the priests would like to make it the state religion. They even talk of sending missionaries to the United States, and also to the Asiatic countries including China and Korea and India. Last spring a famous Buddhist of Ceylon visited Japan and described the backward condition of the faith in India, whereupon some of the richest of the Buddhists took a famous image of Buddha which was celebrated throughout Japan and shipped it off to India, in order that it might be put in the Temple of Buddha religion had his great fight with the ones and conquered. This statue art. One of the Buddhist archbisho of Japan went with it, and when he go to let the image be put in. He had several thousand men about him, and he was to enforce the refusal with blood-government to take up the matter. Buddhists intended the sending of the statue to be the beginning of a re-vival of Buddhism in India, and they will not probably let the matter rest as it is. HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS OF BUDD-in the world. It is, you know, the chief religion of Siam, Burmah, Japan, Korea, has millions of followers in China and India. There are in Japan 72,000 Buddhist temples, and in the city of Kioto. which is about as big as Washinxton, there are 3500 temples, which are devoted to this religion. Some of the most gorgeous temples in the world are the wonderful structures in which Buddha is worshiped at Bangkok in Slam; Pagoda, which is said to rest over several the actual hairs which came from uddha's head. It is a mountain of gold, Buddha's head. It is a mountain of gold, or rather, ot brick and stone plastered over with gold leaf. It is built upon a mighty platform, and its base is about a quarter of a mile in circumference, and these terraes of gold go upward in bell-like storie to a height greater than that of any church spire or any structure in this country, excepting the Washington Monument. It has a base Washington Monument. It has a base of fourteen acres, and on its top there is a great golden umtrella, to the ribs of which jewels are hang. The whole of this vast structure is plated with gold as fine as any ever put into an American tooth. It is hundreds of years old, and it has been plated and plated again, and there are, undoubtedly, millions of metal mixed with the brick and plaster of which it is made. One King of Burmah vowed that he would give his weight would grant him something that he would grant him something that he wanted. Buddha accepted the proposition. At least his wish became true, and when he hopped on the imperial scales it is said that he registered 170 pounds. The vow cost him just about $45,000 in gold leaf. Well, this great monument is now being regilded, and a small fortune is being put into its restoration. I visited temples in China which contained thousands of little gold Buddhas, and there is one at Nanking which I saw last spring in which there were 10,000 gods under one roof. Some of them were very small gods, but the priests told me that they actually numor them were very many priests told me that they actually num-bered 10,000, and all were plated with gold leaf. During my stay in Siam some years ago, I visited one temple devoted to Buddha, a part of which was carpeted with woven silver, and I found a very lively monastery in Kores in which there were hundreds of monks. Throughout' the whole eastern world the finest of the temples and the fattest of the priests are those of the Buddhist religion, and though the faith may be sleeping, it is

ROPES OF HUMAN HAIR.

When I visited this temple six years ago the logs were being dragged about from you could see threads of white. The ropes looked very curious to me, and I asked cut off their locks and given them for this purpose as an offering to Buddha. I was shown a vast amount of such rope, and by no means dead. I do not know whether it is due to their religion or not, but the Buddhists of the east are, in not, but the Buddhists of the east are, in most respects, kind and gentle one toward another. The Japanese people are the soul of refinement and you are many sld faces which youl would not object to having among your ancestral portraits. A great deal has been written about the young girls of Japan. The old women are to me quite as charming, and I have seen old couples whose gray hair and

JAPAN'S NEW BUDDHIST TEMPLE. Perhaps the finest and costliest church Perhaps the finest and costliest church that is being erected in the world today is the Higashi Hongwanji Temple, which is now being built in Kioto. It has been a long time under construction, but it is rapidly approaching completion, and when it is finished it will have cost, all 'told, something like $8,000,000. Think of that! Eight million dollars for a church! I don't believe we have one in the United States that has cost as much, and I know we have none that have been built in such a curious way. A large part of it has been the work of charity. The carpenters, the carvers and other artists have come from all parts of the country, and have worked a certain number of weeks

This hair was of all kinds. Here the fine silky locks of the maiden were braided into the silvery strands of the old woman, into the silvery strands of the old woman, and a section of the rope showed ends of iron gray, snow white, and let black. Some of the cables were as big around as your leg, and there were other ropes no thicker than a clothesine. These ropes have now been all collected together. They are wrapped up in great coils on the portice which runs round the temple, and they will be kept as one of its treasures. they will be kept as one of its treasures. Not long ago a section of the rope was sent to the National Museum at Washington. and it may now be seen in one of the case

SOME FAMOUS BUDDHAS. I found other new temples building in different parts of Japan, and I saw magnificent statues of Buddha being made here and there. At Kobe I saw one which had just been completed, and which could not have cost much less than $100,000. It is just outside of the temple of Nofukuji, and it is an immense bronze image as tall as a four-story house, and eighty-five feet in diameter about the waist. It is so tall and the length of the face is eight and one-half feet. Each of its eyes is a yard wide and its thumbs are two feet in circumfer for the temple for nothing. It has been about fifteen years in building, and when I first saw it six years ago there were forty acres of sheds about it in which hundreds of carpenters were cutting up great logs which had been imported from the Island of Formosa into boards, and hundreds of carvers were turning other logs into real works of fine art. Everywas done by hand, and immens beams, such as would be a load for a team of Norman horses were being carried upon onto the top of the structure feet wide had been built upon a scaffold-ing, making an inclined plane running hundred or so men would catch hold of one of these logs and carry it up on their backs. There was then, and there is still,

of a telegraph pole, I judge. The god sits with his legs crossed, like a Turk, and its lap covers as much space as a good-sized parlor. This god sits on a massive pedes there is a little temple inside of it. It is a wonderfully beautiful statue, and it is only one of thousands that may be found throughout the empire.

TWO GIANTS IN BRONZE.

Japan has, in fact, the biggest Buddhas of the world. There is one in a park at Nara, not far from the old capital, Kloto, which is the largest, I traveled twenty-five miles in going from Kloto to Nara, and I spent a day in this center of Japanese Buddhism. The statue is in a temple, which is as tall as any New York flat, and you have to take your shoes off before you can go inside of it. It is backs. There was then, and there is still, an immense scaffolding about the temple made of thousands of poles tied together with ropes, and these poles were of all sizes, from that of a fishing-rod up to a telegraph pole. They looked very insecure to me, but I was told that they were perfectly safe, and all of the scaffolding used by the Japanese is made in this way. Think of building a structure costing millions of dollars without derricks or machinery of any kind, and you have to take your shoes off before you can go inside of it. It is on a /pedestal, and these are dozens of gold gods all about it. Some of these gods are eighteen feet high, but they look like with its legs crossed and his right hand uplifted, among them. There is a little fence around it, and it was impossible for machinery of any kind, and you can know that these Japanese are doing there. THE LEGACY OF THE PAST WEEK.

is more than a thousand years old, or, at least, the material of which it is com-posed has been worshiped at Nara for that time. It was originally made of that time. It was originally made of gold and copper, about 750 A.D., but the temple containing it has been burned temple containing it has been burned again and again, and it has been each time remeited and remade.

The other great Buddha is that at Kamakura, which has been written about by nearly every traveler who has gone to Japan. It is another immense image. to Japan. It is another immense image. It is not so tall by six feet as that of Nara, and all travelers so far have spoken of its wonderful beauty and the peaceful content shown in its features. I went out to see it, and looked for the peace, but I couldn't find it. I sat and gazed and studied, but its face was sad rather sorrow rather than pleasure, and with doubt rather than faith. I venture the soulptor who made it did not believed in the religion which he was trying to per-sonify, or wendered at the time if, after all, he was not mistaken.

BUDDHIST CHURCHES WITH BIG IN-

enormous incomes. There is one right near the new temple I have described which takes in about $200,000 a year, and this It is known as the Nishi Hongwandi Tem ple, and it is a wonder in the richness of its interior decoration. It has hundreds of rooms walled with gold leaf, and it con-tains hundreds of screens painted by the old Japanese masters. A famous left-handed artist of Japan, Jingoro, did most of the carving within it, and it is ceiled in some places with black and gold lacquer and its trimmings are of wonderfully carved brass. It has a bell almost as big as a small seaside cottage, and this is rung by a big log of wood, which is hung outside of the bell to a rope, and can be pulled back so that it will strike the bell on the rebound. It has one audience-room which it, and the brass lanterns which hang from the great rafters of this room are each as big as a hogshead. This church is one of the most liberal of the Buddhists, and same as those of Unitarian Christianity. He was not in favor of monopolizing the religions of Japan, and said there was room enough for both the Christians and Buddhists to work. He spoke English flulargely infidels or agnostics, and many of those who pretended to be Buddhists had not working faith in them. I found him broadminded in every respect, and one thing which he said surprised me. This was that his sect of Buddhists did not believe that Nirvana meant a state of soul annihilation, but that it meant only the annihilation of all that was had and of the continuance and growth of all that was good in man. He told me, however, that only a few Buddhists were as libe as he was, and from what I saw in other parts of the empire I am sure he was cor MANY BUDDHIST SECTS.

There are almost as many Buddhist There are almost as many Buddhist sects in Japan as there are Christian sects in America. They all believe in Buddah, but they have different doctrines and different modes of worship. There is one sect which sell medicine and charms which will protect you against coughs, consumption, the devil or the smallpox. They sell all kinds of sand which is supposed to make the limbs of the dead soft and flexible, so they can be easily doubled in the box-like coffins which are used by the Japanese. These are known as the Tendi sect, and they have between four and five thousand tem-ples in Japan. The Monto sect, the Nichiren and the Jodo sect may be called Nichiren and the Jodo sect may be called the three most powerful branches of the Japanese Buddhists. The Montos worship Amida Buddha, and they say that earnest prayer, noble thoughts and good works are the elements of their faith. It is to this sect, I think, that these two big temples which I have described belong, and it has also immense temples in Tokyo and elsewhere. The Nichiren sect are the shouting worshipers of the faith. They are violent and noisy, and they think that all other sects except themselvas go straight to hell. The Jodo sect do not eat flesh, and they insist that their priests should not marry. They pray priests should not marry. They pray-without ceasing, and spend a great part of their time squatting before bells of wood and brass, on which they pound in QUEER TEMPLES.

I could fill this paper with the curious things found about the Buddhist temples. There are little wooden gods for bables diseases, around which children's bibs are diseases, around which children's bibs are tied, and there are other gods which are supposed to help bables in teething. There are some which are good for the stomachache, and others which will cure sore eyes. In some of the temples there are sacred ponies which you may feed with holy beans at 1 cent a plate and gain religious credit thereby. These are, I think, however, more connected with the Shinto temples, and, by the way, there is one famous white horse at the temples of Ise which is supposed to be gifted with supernatural powers. According to the stories current in Japan, he has a good the empire, and after the Satsuma re-bellion he disappeared and did not come back for three days. His return on the third day was, so the Japanese papers state, considered very prophetic of the success of the Emperor's cause. During turned looking fresh and well. prophets of Japan state that this indi-cated Japan's victories over China, and that the hostilities would last three times

CHRISTIANITY IN JAPAN. the missionaries do more work than in Japan, and they have, as I said, stirred the Buddhists into action. Many of the Japanese do not like the idea that their labors, and some of the people think that such mission work as is done should the question of foreign missions came up in Parliament, and it was argued fro one standpoint that the missionaries ought to be tolerated because they brought a great deal of money into the country. It was stated in the papers at that time that there were 650 foreign missionaries per month, making a total of $65,000 per month spent by the missionaries. It will thus be seen that the Christian during a talk which I had with the priest I found that his views were very much the $780,000 a year, and these expenditures the native papers thought, ought to be encouraged. They stated that there were 40,000 Christians among the Japanese, and that there were 1200 Japanese pastors. There are Japanese who think that their ently, and he told me that he had lived for people are destined to introduce Christwo years in England. He was very much tianity into China and Korea, and some depressed as to the religious state of favor the absorption and combination of Japan, and said that the better classes were the three religions of Buddhism, Confucianism and Christianity. deal of earnest work. The field is divided up among the Catholics and the different Protestant sects, and there is, in addition, a mission of the Greek church, which has 1700 baptized converts, and which was established by the Russians. The Catholics have three bishops, sixty-seven missionaries and about forty thousand members. The Protestants, unlike those of other countries, work, to a large ex tent, together, and they have good school and good colleges. The Doshisha Univer sity, which exists at Kioto, in Wester of the far East. Among its professors ar men, who would do credit to Harvard and it now includes a girls' school, a school of science and a training-school for nurses. There are a number of native religious clubs, and the Young Men's Christian Association has a flourishing or ganization in Japan, and there is also Young Woman's Temperance Union. The Red Cross Society has been doing a great deal during the present war, going to the field and taking care of both Japanes

[From a Special Contributor.]

Christmas day broke in splendor over the Kwan-Gi-Tia Mountains and flooded the swarming city of Amoy and the little foreign settlement of Kulangsu in golden light. The great bay lay smooth and si-lent, like a sheet of burnished blue steel. From ten thousand little houses wreaths front the passenger skiffs and cargo junks began to make ready for the toll of the day. China never rests, and never sleeps. No day is so sacred, no night so stormy lanes and streets of the populous city came troops of Chinese, clad in their most brilliant raiment, laughing, singing and chatting. From the men-of-war and merchant ships came a group of sallors and a few officers. From the foreign settlement on the Island of Kulangsu came swift men-of-war gigs, carrying officers of the customs, members of the consular body and parties of women and children from the various European homes.

Each gig flew its particular flag. From the consular boats floated the colors of the nationality they represented. The customs boats flew the great yellow banner of China with its blue and green dragon. The boats of private citizens were decorated simply with the merchant flags of the firms by whom their owners ware employed.

There are only 300 Europeans all told in Amoy, of whom but a fourth are members of the church, and these chiefly Portuguese. Of this number not more than sixty attended mass on Christmas morning. The cathedral yard was clean and neat and the building sweet and spotless, terms which have but little meaning in America, but possess a profound significance in a land where many of the streets fairly reek and where a majority of the houses are pig pens.

Within the building was the dim light, the great space, the ornaments and decorations of the walls, the splendid altar and all the magnificent paraphernalia of the faith of Rome. There was Padre Canial, the acting archibishop of the district, a handsome, courtly, scholarly man, who might serve as a model for one but that the hum of industry and the but that the hum of industry and the noise of labor go on uninterruptedly. It was so on this bright Christmas morning. There were boat repairers on the beach busily engaged upon hulls and cabins and masts. There were blacksmiths in the forges shaping red-hot iron and white-hot steel into all sorts of forms and designs. There were peasants, market men, peddlers and water carriers, moving along the highways in the distribution and sale of their wares.

Looking at him, as he addressed that remarkable but interesting congregation, it was difficult to realize that he had been a distinguished noble in years long past, who had suddenly abjured his wealth, title, power and ambitious future, and had joined the Jesuits as a humble brother, and that for thirty years he had devoted his life, day and night, to the conversion of the Chinese to the true faith. As he stood at the altar he seemed not more than five and twenty; the happy life had wiped away thirty years of arduous toil and self-sacrifice and brought back the stately beauty of his youth.

CHINESE CHORISTERS.

As the morning progressed flags began to appear on every ship in the harbor and flagstaff on shore. The great ensign of England rose up in front of the British Consulate simultaneously with that of France, Russia, Germany, Scandinavia, Denmark, Belgium, Spain, Portugal and China itself. But upon the highest mast in Amoy waved the first flag of the world—the Stars and Stripes. On long lines decorative bunting of red, white and blue ran from staff to consulate from consulate to outside walls and neighboring trees, and from trees and walls back to the building again.

Most of the Europeans followed the old oriental custom of lying late in bed. But the Chinese Christians were up and stirring long before dawn, and met the sunrise with salvos of firecrackers and bombs, with drums and tom-toms, with gongs and cymbals, and with that most mournful music of the Eastern flageolet. Above the roofs of the catholic cathedral. It presented a strange contrast to the dwarfish Chinese houses and shops that lay so strongly did it resemble the illustrations of the ancient Spanish civilization which raised it there by the side of the Chinese OLD SPANISH CHIMES.

Suddenly from its belfries rang out the old Jesuit chimes, deep-toned, full-voiced and melodious, like those which flood with melody the air of European roised and metodouts, face those water flood with melody the air of European capitals. They are very old bells, which swing in the Amoy Cathedral. Centuries ago they called the plous to prayer in the suburbs of proud Madrid. Their notes were probably heard by the Saracens before Ferdinand and Isabella had driven the infidel from Spain. They had crossed the stormy Atlantic, and had made music in the Aztec capital. They had ecosed the phillippine islands.

In Manilla they had tolled their sweet language to monk and friar, proud conquestador and simple-minded Malay. From the Phillippines they had crossed the China seas and been raised high in the air of the square tower of the Amoy Cathedral, the oldest temple of worship devoted to the Christian religion in China. The bells of Amoy are a fitting symbol of the land which gave them birth. They had seen Spain's conquest and expansion; of the land which gave them birth. They had seen Spain's conquest and expansion; they had witnessed its lethargy and decline, and here and now, in the dawn of the twentieth century, all their auditors, excepting good Padre Cantal and the young Spanish Vice-Consul, were members of alien races.

At 7 o'clock people began to move toward the cathedral. From the narrow ten to the service. It rolled along in sonorout Latin; it broke into Chinese, and at one point it ran into English. One hymn was given in French and an aria in Italian.

It was a fitting commentary upon the invasion of the effete east by the religious phalanxes of the enthusiastic and tireless West. As for the congregation, it suggested or resembled a bed of flowers in full bloom, so clean and trim, so artistic and so brilliant was every one in appearance.

The hair of the women had been oiled and brushed until it looked like burnished black onyx. In their gorgeously-dressed tresses were silver pins and gold pins, pins from whose tips dangled sprays of gems or brilliant butterfiles in enamel and precious metal, pins of ivory carved in a manner worthy of Cellini; hairpins of green jade, hairpins of crystal and hairpins of curiously carved strange woods and strange shells.

Their raiment was almost as startling in its brilllancy. There were scarlet silk dresses, embroidered in gold; azure satin robes, brocaded in silver; pearly grass cloth, haif covered with dragons in floss silk and bullion thread. There were pink trousers, salmon trousers, ultramarine, orange, lillac, emerald, magenta and violet trousers. There were variegated vests and over-vests that seemed solid embroidery, or woven pieces in odd but brilliant colors.

MIRTH IN CHURCH.

MIRTH IN CHURCH. The children were more gaudily dressed than their parents, for, in addition to their Chinese costumes, nearly every one wore like French people than like Amerintheir church manners. All of them and looked happy, ey evidently regarded it as an occaron mirth and thanskgiving and Joy, or than one of contrition or abnegative they were polite and decorous. Ittle ones climbed over the parkness or got up in their mothers, lovers sat holding each other's and old men stood or sat or kneeled ng against their sons. It was everye a picture of innocent affection and let faith.

The service over, again the great chimes rang out in happy peals, and from every corner of the streets around the cathedral came the noise of the inevitable fire-cracker and the discord of Chinese music. The wise Jesuita, in converting the Chinese, do not insist upon the latter giving up the harmless customs and pastimes of their race that do not conflict with the Catholic creed. The Chinese Christian, as well as the Buddhist and Taoist, enjoys his pyrotechnics, his theater, his noisy procession and his street pageantry.

There was, of course, a parade through the principal thoroughfares of the city. There were dining and festivity in the many Christian homes, and at nightfall thousands of cheap, but brilliant, paper lanterns illuminated the district all about the cathedral. Festivities were of the merry Mongolian pattern, the same today as they were four thousand years ago. There were pigs roasted whole, some delicate little sucklings, and others big Chicago-size porkers that measured four feet from snout to tail. They were roasted, but roasted in a way that would give points to the great restaurants.

They were put whole into large ovens where the fire was at first so hot as to harden the outside skin and was then raked down and half smothered with green wood, so as to produce a moderate warmth and an immoderate amount of smoke. From time to time the cock basted the body of the pig in its own juice, to which he added the savory sauce and spices wherein the Celestial finds pleasure. After hours of patient toil the roast was complete and the pig was transferred from the owen to an immense wooden salver.

The cooked pig is now a rich, bright The cooked pig is now a rich, bright brown from tip to tip, a hard crisp crack-nel on outside, and an indescribably soft and juicy meat within. On every house, although it is in the topics, there were evergreens. A bunch
f cedar festooned the window, a branch and bunches of tinsel paper flowers decoted the rooms. In some houses were hinese Christmas trees which would

Many of the dolls are now familiar to the little girls of America, but others, made of colored straws, of pottery ware, made of colored strains and of carved wood are peculiar to this part of the far east. Then there were Noah's arks, which gave that patriarch a more curious collection of animais than do those similar boxes of toys at home, which contain blue cows, green horses, red cats and bright purple dogs.

A Chinese Noah's ark usually contains two or three well-fed dragons, a unicorn, a griffin, a hippogrif with a long tail, a devil with a black face, and a number of other strange characters that were prevalent in China several thousand years ago, alent in China several thousand years ago, but has never been seen since.

There is no drunkenness and no disorder. The small boy makes hideous noise and dispord with miniature tomtoms, clappers and files, but has not yet acquired the awful vice of the American fish-horn and the putty blower. The boys occupy the streets all day long, until late in the evening with kites, tops, toys and shuttlecocks. They do not play like the American boys. The Chinese boy is more demure and dignified, and gives you an impression that it is not a small boy you see, but an old man dressed up in boy's clothes.

AMONG THE EUROPEANS. The Europeans enjoy the day in the cosmopolitan manner which prevails in lands where different nationalities live cosmopolitan manner which prevails in lands where different nationalities live and work together in harmony. Nearly every house and bungalow holds open doors and extends a hearty welcome to all who call. In some, the Christmas punch bowl is kept ever full upon the table in the reception room, with its solace to family and visitors. In others, both food and drink are served with unstinted hand. In every home warm hospitality prevails. The officers of the ships come ashore and pass the day in calling upon their friends. The residents exchange visits with their neighbors and with the ships officers and crews in the harbor. On the cricket ground and tennis courts open games continue from sunrise until far into the dusk. At the club and in thotals the billiard tables and the bowling alleys are continues from sunrise until far into the dusk. At the club and in thotals the billiard tables and the bowling alleys are continues in the store of imported beer and of Rhine and Moselle wines; the Spaniard, the vintages of Oporto, Keres, Andalusis and the Spanish mountain vineyards; the American, the famous distillates of Kentucky bourbon and the universally popular Pennsylvania rye; the Englishman, bass and stout; the happy Scotchman, the Highland dew; the son of Erris invariably displays a demijohn of potheen and a jug of rare, old, Irish whisky; the Scandinavian offers Swedish vinch, and the Portuguese the delicious but insinuating liquors for which Macao has long been famous. Good cheer prevals everywhere. Some houses give breakfast parties, luncheons, tiffins and formal dinners; others confine themselves to tiffins and dinner parties, but the humblest provide one meal for friends and strangers in honor of the day.

Toward noon messages and telegrams come in from all quarters of the globe. The friendly and sociable nature of the people in the far east leads them to telegraph the compliments of the day all along the coast. At one moment you receive the compilments of the day all along the coast. At one moment you receive "Merry Christmas" from Hong Kong, and the next a cheery "God bless you" from Shanghal. In my own case the climax was capped in Amoy when I received a cablegram from Philadelphia, from George C. Boldt, wishing me a "Merry Christmas and many of them."

TRIBUTES FROM FOREIGNERS.

TRIBUTES FROM FOREIGNERS.

During the day your Chinese servants, tradesmen and friends, and even the great mandarins and high officials send you little reminders of the great day of the Christian calendar. These compilments take all sorts of funny forms. One messengers brings you six live chickens tied together by the feet, all futtering and all making an unearthly racket.

Another brings you two pretty little baskets, the one filled with hens' eggs and the other with ducks; a third a basket of fruit, the fourth a great box of rock candy, which would correspond to a box of Laurent's or Huyler's at home. A roast chicken or duck, a roast pig, a box,of tea, a wall ornament, a tinseled bouquet, a bottle of very bad brandy or a box of unsmokable cigars, are among the souvenirs with which your tables become loaded before nightfall.

Between noon and dinner time many of your Chinese friends call upon you. You are apprised of their arrival by receiving a large sheet of red paper with their names printed in it in attractive characters at least five minutes before they approach in person.

characters at least five minutes before they approach in person.

They then appear clothed in dignity and fine satin, bowing and chin-chining anywhere from three to fifteen times, shaking their own hands convulsively un-til you fear that they will dislocate their wrists; they take a sip of wine, a whift of a cizarette, say something or other in wrists; they take a sip of wine, a whiff of a cigarette, say something or other in their own vernacular, smile as if in ineffable delight and then, again bowing and shaking their own hands, move quietly backward to the door and away.

The dinner parties close about 9:30 or 10 o'clock in the evening, and then the place is given over to the young unmarried men. They make night hideous like American college boys in the holiday season. They go from house to house levying liquid tribute, pulling friends out of bed, tying the bell rope to the church high in the rafters of the building and filling the midnight air with all the old songs of Great Britain, America, France and Germany.

when the day is done and the noise and activity pass into silence the conviction comes that it has been as happy a day as can fall to one's lot so far away from "home, sweet home."

EDWARD BEDLOE.

ART AND ARTISTS.

Los Angeles can realize something of the growth that she is making along esthetic lines if she will but note the advance in art which has been made within the past decade. Ten or fifteen years ago true art had scarcely found a foothold in our midst. We had paint-ers by the score, but of artists we had very few. Los Angeles was in a tran-sition state. Business and wealth gath-ering, and trade were the chief concerns very few. Los Angelea, was in a transition state. Business and wealth gathering, and trade were the chief concerns of the public. We had not the leisure to attend to the finer things of life, but were simply making ready for our future. That future is dawning, though the shadows have not all been dissipated, and we are making room for the enjoyment of better things. A good picture appeals to us now as it did not years ago, for we are better fitted to appreciate it as a means of education and higher development. J. G. Borglum has painted well and revealed to us some of the beauties of the twilight hour in his "Driving Home the Flock," where the rosy sunset lights mingle with the soft clouds of dust, making a glory as of liquid amethyst. J. Bond Francisco has given us the pathos and patience of suffering in his "Young Invalid," where the sleeping boy seems to stand out from the canvas, like a living form, scarce breathing in the hush of the sick chamber. Eugene Torrey has painted the sea for us, until we can almost hear the sound of its lapping waves upon the white sands of its shores, and other artists have truthfully duplicated nature upon their canvas. Ludovici and McGlosky, with others, have done well in the field of portrature. We have our School of Art and Design, and a newly-formed Art Association, from which we hope much in the way of inspiring a love for true art among our people.

wood, which she has reproduced to the life. The coloring is fine, the tall reeds in the background seem to be swayed by the soft winds, the water is limpid and pure, and we miss in it only the soft breath of the hills. The soft-clouded sky is the sky of California, with its rifts of blue, such as we see in the mellow autumn days, when the reainy season approaches, when there is just a hint in the sky of its coming.

A magnolia twig and bloesom, in oil, is another charming ploture, and very tempting are the short, broad stalks of the paims, with the painted flowers, like nature the drooping pepper, in whose shade stands a pig-tailed Celestial, true to the life, "likee nobody so velly muchee as hisself."

Mrs. I. M. Patterson has a lovely studio, where flowers are seemingly springing into fresh life upon her walls, and the orange and lemon seem pendant upon their stalks. Upon several canvases were painted bowls, filled with the golden popples of California, very correct in coloring and texture. The wild poppies upon her canvas are not less beautiful than those found upon our hillsides, and they make a picture which is like a bit of color brought from the breezy hillsides and plains. The warm glow of the sunlight is upon them, and we smell the soft breath of the outer world.

And here are the painted pepper boughs, with the donkeys standing in their shade; dainty frames of orange wood, covered with painted leaves and blossoms, with ripened fruit, making a beautiful setting for a picture. And here, also, are the pretty napkin rings of orange wood, their shade; dainty frames of orange wood, evered with painted leaves and blossoms, with ripened fruit, making a beautiful setting for a picture. And here, also, are the pretty napkin rings of orange wood, the string pepper's shade, and the bright poppy-covered hillsides, and rejoice in the charms of them all. Surely our studios offer enough that is distinctively Californian to make them differ materially from the art homes upon the other side of the continent, and attrac

At last he was able to sit up, then to resume his duties, and matters went on for a while at the Thompson's as before his sickness.

When he had been with them about six months Thompson and he walked out one pleasant Sunday to the park. They were seated side by side, when Thompson turned to Fred and said suddenly, "So Fred, you love Anna, and she loves you."

The young man turned pale. "Tomo." he replied, "I do not know who has been talking to you, but your wife is above reproach, and I have never uttered a word of love to her." replied Thompson, "I ask you do you love her; does she love you."

Yes, I will tell the truth, and then you may kill me if you like, and I will not raise a hand in my own defense. I do love her."

"Come home with me," said Thompson, gently, "we must have this matter settled at once."

They walked back together in silence.

This is when you are beginning. You naturally expect trouble then, and you are not likely to be disappointed. But as you get on a little the thing becomes more ir-back along the road you stop an instant to tell a group in the hotel veranda how well you are getting along. Someshing happens—and they suddenly find that their congratulations are addressed to the soles of your "ski." Then, if your mouth is not full of snow you find yourself muttering the names of a few Swiss villages to relieve your feelings. "Ragatz!" is a very handy word and may save a scandal.

But all this is in the early stage of sking. You have to shuffle along the level, to zig-zag or move crab fashion up the hills, to silde down without losing your balance, and above all to turn with facility. The first time you try to turn your friends think it is part of your tun. The great ski fiapping in the air has the queerest appearance, like an exaggerated nigger dance. But this sudden whish round is really the most necessary of accomplishments, for only so can one turn upon the mountain side without slipping down. It must be done without ever presenting one's heels to the slope, and this is the only way.

OVER ROLLING SNOW FIELDS.

The snow being still hard enough upon the slopes to give us a good grip for our feet we pushed rapidly on over rolling snow fields with a general upward tendency. About 7:30 the sun cleared the neaks behind us and the glare upon the great expanse of virgin snow became very dazzling. We worked our way down a long slope and then coming to the corresponding hill side with a northern outlook we found the snow as soft as powder and so deep that we could touch no bettom with our poles. Here then we took our snow-shoes, and zig-zagged up over the long white haunch of the mountain pausing at the top for a rest. They are useful things the "ski," for finding that the snow was again hard enough to bear us we soon converted ours into a very comfortable bench, from which we enjoyed the view of a whole panorama of mountains, the names of which, my readers will be relieved to hear, I have completely forgotten.

The snow was rapidly softening under the glare of the sun and without our shoes all progress would have been impossible. We were making our way along the steep side of a valley with the mouth of the Furka Pass fairly in front of us. The snow fell away here at an angle of from 50 to 60 deg. and as this steep incline along the face of which we were shuffing sloped away down until it ended in absolute precipice a slip might have been serious. My two more experienced com-

And now came the real sport of snow-shoeing. Hitherto we had walked as fast as boots, would do, over ground where no boots could pass. But now we had a pleasure which boots can never give. For a third of a mile we shot along over gently dipping curves skinming down into the valley, without a motion of our feet. In that great untrodden waste with snow fields bounding our vision on every side and no marks of life save the tracks of chamois and of foxes, it was glorious to whizz along in this easy fashion. A short zigzag at the bottom of the slope, brought us at 9:30 into the mouth of the nass, and we could see the little toy hotels of Arosa away down among the fir woods thousands of feet beneath us.

OVER SNOW DRIFTS THIRTY FEET

OVER SNOW DRIFTS THIRTY FEET DEEP.

It might have been an awkward accident in the upper-sheld where the drifts are twenty or thirty feet deep. But the steepness of the place was an advantage new, for the snow could not accumulate to any great extent upon it. I made my way down in my own fashion. My tallor tells me that Harris tweed cannot wear out. He will find samples of his wares on view from the Furka Pass to Arosa, and for the remainder of the day I was happiest when nearest the wall.

However, save that one of the Brangers sprained his ankle badly in the descent, all went well with us, and we entered Arosa at 11:20, having taken exactly seven hours over our journey. The residents at Arosa who knew that we were coming had calculated that we could not possibly be there before 1 o'clock, and turned out to see us descend the steep pass just about the time when we were finishing a comfortable luncheon at the Seehof. I would not grudge them any innocent amusement, but still I was just as glad that my own little performance was over before they assembled with their oper-glasses. One can do very well without a gallery when one is trying a new experiment on "ski." (Copyright, 1894, by A. Conan Doyle.)

THE KIND OF CHARITY

That "Curseth Him Who Gives and Him Who Takes."

That "Curseth Him Who Gives and Him Who Takes."

(December Forum:) There is many a rich man seated today with easy conscience at a table shining with cut-glass and silver, who would be ready to stretch out a helping hand to those who need it, if they were not "all so far away." He is living in another world. What he does is to make his amnual contributions to our charitable societies, and that is all. Some day we shall begin to calculate the evil resulting from such contributions. Again and again is it true of the charity of today that "it curseth him who gives and him who takes." On the one hand the poor man, sinking down into the mire of pauperism, realizes dimly the bitterness of his degradation, and takes the alms offered him with curses in his heart; while on the other hand the rich merchant or manufacturer, who is daily disregarding the health of little children and delicate girls, quiets his conscience with a large chock in the name of charity. And society applauds the generosity of such a man, and his eyes are blinded. "It is so tempting to the rich to think that by giving a check for the support of a social scheme, poverty may be abolished, and they be left free to enjoy their wealth. They always hope that something, not themselves, might meet all needs."

One is often asked the question, "What can the rich man do for the relief of suffering?" I believe that there is but one answer: Let him give not alms but himself, and the wisdom comes with the giving. I knew a young apprentiee in a great machine-shop who was stricken down with consumption. His parents were old and feeble, and it was only through the gifts of his employer that his last days were made comfortable, but more to them all than the gifts was the fact that the employer came himself to the little home in the East-side tenement, and spoke friendly words. From every such natural friend.

THE MAYOR'S VETO.

As noted elsewhere in The Times, Mayor Rowan yesterday vetoed the or-dinance for the issuance of bonds for park, sehool and other pur-The Mayor's objections to the proposed bond issue are stated briefly. As to the clearly school bonds, he does not consider the amount specified, $185,000 as sufficient to meet the demand for in-creased educational facilities. The ordinance, moreover, does not specifically state in what manner the money is to be expended. Such specific statement the Mayor rightly regards as due to the taxpayers of the city before they can be expected to authorize the loan.

As regards the proposed tunnel through the hill at Third street, Mayor Rowan believes that "the expense of that improvement, if it can be so called, should be borne by the district to be particularly benefited. He points out, further, that though the large sum of $141,000 is asked for to defray the cost of constructing the tunnel, no provision is made for the payment of damages to property-owners whose property might be damaged by the He is also of opinion that the question might be disposed of at ordinary city election, thus avoiding the extra expense of a special election.

It is extremely doubtful if the proposed loan would have been authorized by the people, had the matter been submitted to vote, as proposed in the ordinance yetoed. The absence of specific information as to how the money was to be expended was, as the Mayor points out, a serious objection. It is the moral, if not the legal, duty of the Council, in submitting a proposition of this kind, to furnish and specific information as to the manner in which the money borrowed is to be expended. The Third-street tunnel scheme is obviously impracticable at this time, when money for the enlargement of school facilities, and for other purpo ses, is so imperatively needed.

There is also a nebulous uncertainty as to how the money asked for the improvement of Elysian Park is to be ex-The ordinance throws little er no light on this uncertainty. The sum of $100,000 might easily be thrown away on this park without affording any adequate return. The people are entitled to know just what it is proposed to do in this work, and it is the plain duty of the Council to furnish the required information.

The taxpayers of the city are to be congratulated on the firmness of Mayor Rowan in placing his official disapproval upon this proposition, in its present form. The Council must furnish a bill of particulars if it expects a scheme of this kind to receive the canction of the people.

It is not possible, at this late day, for the Council to pass the bond ordinance over the Mayor's veto in time to submit the question to the voters at the time named in the instrument. The members will have to pick their flints and try it again, and on new

THE MILWAUKEE SCHEME.

As briefly outlined in recent dispatches, "organized labor" has enteered upon a new scheme of organization in Milwaukee. So far as can be gathered from the meager accounts of the plan, it is proposed to widen the scope of the labor unions by taking in the entire population of the city. "Ward unions" are to be organized, to include not only all classes of wageearners, but merchants, professional men, capitalists, etc. The idea appears to be that such an organization would be invincible, and would be able to sweep everything before it, to the superlative credit and glory of "organ-ized labor."

Upon a superficial examination, the Milwaukee scheme appears to be monthly publications. A single issue Utopian, not to say ridiculous. It is like an inverted pyramid-a bulky often contains double, treble, and even superstructure resting upon a wholly quadruple the amount of matter, by inadequate foundation. Oil and water actual measurement, that is contained will not mix, and there is but little in a single issue of the largest of the probability that the proposed organiza-tion can be accomplished, and if it could be, the result would be to wipe out trade unionism in Milwaukee. The tion can be accomplished, and if it could be, the result would be to wipe out trade unionism in Milwaukee. The organizers would speedily discover that they had bitten off a much larger mouthful than they could masticate. In their zeal to swell their membership by taking in all sorts of people. And when to the news features of a high order of exclasses who would acquire persons and classes who would not coalesce, nor programme," nor obey orders, nor be supplanting the monthly review in popularity and influence.

There remains, of course, and will always remain, a certain field for the monthly magazine. It is convenient in form, and within its restricted field it is a valuable feature of current lit erature. It also affords scope fo a finer class of illustrations than is possible in the daily paper, with the tremendous speed at which it must come from the presses, and the cheaper quality of paper that must be used But the great magazines which are already established, monopolize the magazine field to a large extent, to the exclusion of competition in their The number of such publications that can succeed is limited, be Muse the field is limited. Hence it is that the new candidates for public favor find it extremely difficult to se cure a foothold. The establishment of new magazine upon a paying basis means the sinking of thousands and even hundreds of thousands of dollars The prospect is not at all inviting, for tunately for would-be investors in enterprises of this kind. Nine out of ten ventures in the magazine field come to grief sooner or later.

(Richmond Dispatch Dem.:) That the banks ought to be divorced from the government was a part of the Democratic creed of the olden time. (Pasadena Star:) We hope that no partisan spirit will enter into the proposed contest of Mr. Budd's efection. a victory justly won. There should be unmistakable evidence of fraud to justify a contest.

(Toledo Blade:) The Carlisle plan stands no show of adoption. The Democrats in Congress are hopelessly divided on finance, and no legislation is to be expected from them. The great question of the best plan whereby the government shall abandon banking functions, and divorce itself from all issuing of circulating notes, must fall upon the statesmen of the Republican party in the next Congress.

(New York Herald Dem.:) Among the first acts of Congress should be the appointment of a commission to devise a reform of the currency and the passage of an act authorizing the issue of a popular loan, the proceeds of which might, perhaps, be used to retire the legal tenders and Sherman notes that are causing so much trouble. In doing this the governmen would merely be funding a very annoying floating debt.

(Indianapolis Sentinel, Dem.:) No intelligent man can fall to see that the real source of the government's present trouble is the necessity of maintaining the gold standard. Its credit money is presented for redemption, and it must be redeemed in gold on demand, or specie payments must be suspended. The only way to get rid of this situation is a retirement of all the credit money, including silver, of the government.

(Atlanta Constitution, Dem..) The great trouble with Mr. Cleveland's plan is that instead of retiring the legal-tender notes it employs them as the guarantee funds for the redemption of the hotes of insolvent banks. What the East wants is the retirement of legal-tenders in order that the banks of that section may retain a firmer grip on the currency of the country; but we think we can promise the bretiren that this will not be done during the present generation.

Then, at the brief command of Lee, Moved out that matchless infantry, With Pickett leading grandly down To rush against the roaring crown Of those dread heights of destiny.

Far heard above the angry guns A cry across the tumult runs; A cry across the tumult runs;
The voice that rang through Shiloh's

The fierce South cheering on her sons.

Virginia cries to Tennessee;
"We two together, come what may,
Shall stand upon those works today,
The reddest day in history!" But who shall break the guards that wait Before the awful face of fate? The tattered standards of the South Were shriveled at the cannon's mouth, And all her hopes were desolate.

In vain the Tennessean set His breast against the bayonet; In vain Virginia charged and raged, A tiger in her wrath uncaged, Till all the hill was red and wet!

They leaped to ruin's red embrace;
They only heard fame's thunder wake,

Meeting in West Los Angeles to Concorrespondent writes The Times

The announcement in The Times of the The announcement in The Times of the boundary lines of the "Greater Los Angeles" has caused much comment, and, as might have been anticipated, not all one-sided. There are still those who claim that annexation will be too expensive, and who declaim loudly against being "held for the city's debts."

A meeting was held at Rosedale a few nights ago, where very much adverse

A meeting was held at Rosedale a few nights ago, where very much adverse sentiment was elicited. It was claimed that, taking in all territory to Western avenue was impracticable, on account of the numerous ranches embraced. In that locality they are working under what they call an "improvement association," and which they claim is very satisfactory. But University has tried the association to its satisfaction. A few of the leading public spirits organized there and went so far as to appoint committees to number the houses. They performed their work in part, but the expense they incurred was in part, but the expeleft upon that their own shoulders, which dampened their ardor and left upon their own shoulders, which materially dampened their ardor and enthusiasm, and the "improvement" association was declared a failure.

Rosedale will be the exception if it works to the satisfaction of its people. In the meantime annexation is being agitated, and a meeting will soon be called to test the sentiment of the people of West Los Angeles.

There is, again, a lively demand for the opening of Thirty-second street, between Key West and Hoover. Those who were the cause of the failure of the enterprise before, acknowledged their mistake, and the matter is likely to be opened again at any time. The sentiment now take, and the matter is likely to be opened again at any time. The sentiment now prevails to do it privately, paying the expense by voluntary subscriptions from those interested. It is now believed that the matter can be amicably adjusted, and at less cost than was before required. People living on Thirty-second street now realize that their property would be greatly enhanced in value by the opening of the street, and many others on both sides of the obstruction are becoming interested.

sides of the obstruction are becoming interested.

A few days ago it was reported that a new Baptist church was to be located on the corner of Kingsley and Thirtieth streets, a contract for the lot having been obtained from the University people by Rev. W. W. Tinker. But later developments are that when it was ascertained that it was to be used for church purposes the owners violently kicked, and the Baptist folks surrendered the contract, claiming that they did not desire to locate where such unfriendly sentiment was expressed.

It is now claimed that very important improvements will be made by the Uniimprovements with the control of Southern California this season in their college grounds. It is a "consummation devoutly to be wished," as it would assist in enhancing actual values of all the property contiguous thereto.

The City of the Angels has demon strated its ability to support a Henderson extravaganza for a week and that enter-prising manager promises to come again. To be sure the stage at the Los Angeles is contracted for the proper display of a great spectacle, like "Aladdin, Jr.," but, notwithstanding the cramped con-ditions the stage pictures of the week the engagement has been an all-round success, the audiences growing larger and larger with each successive performance.

Mr. Henderson is a manager who lavishes money on theatrical productions without stint. As a consequence, they excel anything heretofore staged in this country. The scenery of the Golden Glen in "Aladdin, Jr.," is quite as close a glimpse of fairy land as mortals are likely to look upon. The handling of the lights on this scene, the sheen of the falling water, the rythmic movement of the corps de ballet and the artistic stepping and pirouetting of the premiers all go to make up a spectacle at once splendid and complete. The costuming is rich and tasteful; all a-glitter with gold and riotous with color. Such a well-drilled and intelligent bevy of shapely women are a feast to the eye which served to draw excel anything heretofore staged in this ous with color. Such a well-drilled and intelligent bevy of shapely women are a feast to the eye which served to draw theater-goers again and yet again. The palace of ebony and gold displayed in the fourth act of this plece was also a revelation in stage splendor and gorgeousness—a very dream of beauty.

Of course, one does not expect much coherency in an extravaganza, nor much fooling, except of a low comedy sort, "Aladdin, Jr.," is replete with rather vapid jests and witticisms and throws dignity to the winds, but the balder the jokes and the more extravagant and tomfoolery the goings on, the louder has been the applause at each performance. The splendid scenery full, of real artistic beauty and the great work of the stage manager and ballet master seemed to fall short of appreciation. However, it has been a great week at the Los Angeles and everybody has had the worth of their money even though seats were put at top prices. When Mr. Henderson comes along next season, as he promises to, one may safely predict that the houses will be too small to hold all the people who will want to see the beautiful and engaging spectacle he has to present.

Beginning next Thursday Thomas Keene, the eminent tragedian, will appear at the Los Angeles Theater for a short season, presenting a round of great parts in which he has achieved lasting fame and distinc-

At the Burbank tonight a special performance of "The Coraioan Brothers" will be given, by request. During the coming week the theater will be closed, completely, renovated and decorated, and fitted with storm doors and appliances for heating the auditorium, a consummation to be wished. The house will be reopened for the holidays on Sunday evening, December 23, with a great spectacular production of the "Black Crook." There will be a grand ballet, high-class vaudeville features by the French grotesque dancers. Les Resmondes and Quazina, the celebrated European pantomimists, and acrobatic marvels, Siegrist and Lee, in their original act, the clown and donkey, and a first-class company of specialty artists. There will be a matinee on Christmas and the regular matinee on Saturday. The sale of seats for the "Black Crook" will begin Thursday, December 20, at 10 o'clock a.m.

Jeffreys Lewis will star at the Burbank Theater in conjunction with Theodore Kremer at the beginning of January. The opening piece will be Mr. Kremer's startling society drama, "Church and Stage." The play was produced in San Francisco with the same stars last October, and created a great sensation. The play, which is a great novelty, was condemned by some of the San Francisco papers for its suggestiveness and for its liberal treatment of a delicate subject. Since them Mr. Kremer has rewritten his play, and all objectionable lines have been eliminated. We are sure that "Church and Stage" will arouse as much interest in Los Angeles as it did in San Francisco, not only in theatrical, but in ecclesiastic and society circles.

The Imperial this evening will bring out a company of vaudeville artists direct from New York city. This will open the new system of importing talent from the East that are contracted to appear but for one week. Hereafter a decided change of programme will be given each week.

for one week. Hereatter a declare change of programme will be given each week.

Tonight's bill will introduce for the first time in this city the famous Mayos troupe, a family consisting of four, whose performance on roller skates is said to be something entirely new. Their introduction of fancy and trick skating includes a great deal of comedy and amusement. Bowen and Walters, the eccentric comedians; Cappolo, the living knot; Gonzales sisters in their negro melodies; Foster and Evans, character and musical artists; Le Mont brothers, the world renowned, acrobats, are all new people. That a long and varied bill will be given is an assurance from the above announcement. This does not complete tonight's programme by six other acts, which include Ward and Marten, Quigley brothers, Miss May Develliou, Russell and Ryder, Toner and Frobel and George Harrison. There will be a matine today at 2 o'clock. Special arangements are being made for the holiday week, when there will be presented a double programme.

Alexander Salvini, the brilliant young actor, in the romantic drama, will appear at the Los Angeles Theater Christmas week for four performances, the definite arrangement of the repertoire to be announced later. This famous artist has an especial interest for the public, for there is not a season, hardly a month, that passes but what he has made another stride on the road to fame, a road on which his illustrious father climbed to greater heights than any other actor of his century. Alexander Salvini is even now but 30 years of age, and for his years he has fully equalled his ancestry. The latest success placed to his account is Victor Hugo's great masterpiece, "Ruy Blas," a play that has been seen so seldom in this generation that it is practically a novelty. "Ruy Blas" offers a grand opportunity to the actor of studious proclivities, to others it is impossible even though genius be their birthright. It is a play of great purpose, it illustrates the great truth of the democracy of birth and the aristocracy of intellect. There are many of his admirers here who have wished to see him in a more serious role than that of D'Artagnan or Don Caesar, and there are few plays that could suit the purbose better than "Ruy Blas." The advance sale of seats will not open until Friday morning, but Manager Wyatt announces that applications by mail will receive attention in the order of their receipt.

The Cycling Club Getting in Shape The Next Country Run.

The East Side Cycling Club, after dormant existence of nearly a year, dormant existence of nearly a year, is bulling itself together and promises to once more assume the position it at one time held in local athletic and sporting circles. Preparations are now being made on a grand scale for the second annual century run, to be given by the club January 13. The course will be the same as last year; to South Riverside and return making a trife under 105 miles. The entrance fee has been set at 50 cents, and it is expected that the number of entries will be considerably more than last year, when eighty odd wheelmen signed up for the first race.

Dr. Charles H. Edmunds and Mrs. Hattle A. Ingram, both well known residents of the East Side, were married Wednesday evening at the Epiphany Chapel on North Sichel street, Rev. Dr. True officiating. After the ceremony, which was conducted with the solemn rites of the Episcopal church, a reception was held at the home of the new couple, No. 641 South Sichel street, where they were treated to a serenade by the young people of their acquaintance. Refreshments were served and a joily time was had, the bride and groom receiving some very handsome presents.

Cards are out for another wedding to take place next Sunday at No. 251 South Hayes street. The contracting parties are W. B. Berry, a well-known local merchant, residing at the address given, and Miss Isabelle Hays, a young lady recently from San Bernardino.

The sect calling themselves Friends, but generally known as Quakers, have erected a gospel tent out on Garland street, near Pasadena avenue, in the arroyo and have sdopted a novel way of increasing the interest in their meetings and themselves. and Mrs. Ezra Stimson entertained at whist, Friday evening, the house being beautifully decorated for the occasion.

Mrs. John A. Weir has taken spartments at the Santa Clara.

John G. Cushman and Cornelia M. Week were united in marriage by Rev. C. S. Vaile, Wednesday noon, December 12, at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 229 West Twenty-seventh street. After a trip through Southern California, Mr. and Mrs. Cushman will make their home in Fargo, N. D.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Sammons and daughter, Miss Jessie C. Givens, of Michigan City, Ind., have taken apartments for the winter at the Santa Clara.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Dunlap (nee Edna Davis) are visiting Mrs. Duniap's mother, Mrs. L. W. French, of -No. 219 West Twenty-third street.

Senator and Mrs. J. P. Jones are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sibley Severance.

The oyster supper and bazar held in Plymouth Church Thursday evening was in every way a successful affair. Over 100 guests sat down to a sumptuous repast, while the fancy articles were nearly all sold, and a social time was enjoyed by all.

Miss Stella A. Crossey, of No. 908 South Broadway, sails tomorrow on the steamer Queen for San Francisco, where she will visit friends for three weeks.

Fine Sport for Girls Either Indoors or Against a Sunny Wall.

[From a Special Contributor-] game frequently played in gymnasiums is ball-stand. One of its numerous claims to favor is that, like basket-ball it is a is considered the best number. The players are numbered from one up, or to add to the amusement, each one responds to the amusement, each one responds to the name of an animal, in alphabetical or-ter—for instance, ape, bat, cat, dog.

The players stand near a wall (if out doors, the side of a house,) inside a line drawn ten feet away from the wall and parallel with it. One girl throws a tennis hall against the wall, before it strikes she cries the number or name of one of the others. This one tries to catch the ball, and if she does so before it touches the ground, she in turn throws it against the wall calling out another number. If howwall, calling out another number. If, however, she has to chase the ball when she has caught it, she cries "Ball-stand," or " according to agreement, when the players, who have hastened to dis-to as many less as they have marks against them.

One point to be remembered is that the one playing against the wall should try to make the ball rebound out of the way of the one whose number she has called, o as to delay her as much as possible; and the others must notice the direction of the ball, so they may get far away from it. Anyone calling her own name or number has two marks scored against her. Whenever the ball is played against the wall, every player must have at least one dot inside the line.

Where and How Fashionable Women Learn to Ride the Wheel.

Now, Johnston says that petiticoats in no way interfere with swift, safe and graceful cycling. He does not believe in bloomers or bifurcated skirts, he pronounced the conventional costume "all right," simply requesting his pupils to wear plain walking dresses when learning to ride. He teaches in two big academies, where smart women are to be found every morning struggling with the problems of mounting, guiding and pedaling according to correct rules. Farmer Scroggins is nothing if not generous. When he brought his family of four to town last summer to see the circus he declared that for this one day at least they should have everything they wanted, even if it cost him a dollar bill.

They arrived in town about noon and were, therefore, hungry. Under the guidance of his elder daughter Gladys, who, by virtue of boing a college graduate, naturally knew everything, they repaired to the nearest hotel.

"Wal," said Farmer Scroggins, when he had securely tucked his napkin under his chin, "what'll ye hev?"

No one answered.

"Gladys, yew tell."

The fair Radcliffe graduate blushed.

"Ask for a menu," she answered.

Farmer Scroggins straightened up. "Ask fer what?"

"A menu;" and the blush deepened.

"Only one menu?"

"Why—er—yes. That is sufficient."

Farmer Scroggins scowled. "Guess not," he said, rather louder than necessary. "Ef I'm going ter dew this thing, I'm a-goin ter dew it right. Hi there, waiter! Bring me menus fer four, an' have 'em well done! Gosh, darter, durned ef I can't eat a whole one myself."

SHE HAS A LOT TO LEARN, BUT Rules that a Debutante Should Observe if She Wants to be a Belle-Be Natural and Self-poised. From a Special Centributor.1 What a thirsty longing every schoolgirl has for that mysterious being "out," which means such magnificent privileges and possibilities, and yet after the first roses of the coming-out tea have faded, after the first blushes have cooled a bit, and that first wild beating of the excited young heart has been a little stilled, a good many girls who are out this winter find, as other girls have found before them.

care-free girl debutante must be busy with learning. One is to drop most of her school-girl siang and be rather more careful with her sentences. Another is to steer carefully between the danger of being a "giddy gusher" or a tiresome young prig. To learn that notes must be answered at once and all engagements carefully kept, even if they happen not to be amusing ones. She must learn, too, the hard lesson of governing her tongue, and being discreet in her talk, lest she alienate friends and get her self into difficultiles, which is, perhaps, the most difficult lesson of all. Then there is the lesson to be learned of not looking bored every time one feels the sensation, lest one wound the feelings of kindly people who are unlucky enough to be dull. It will be necessary to teach herself how to be rid of bores without being rude, which is a whole art in itself, and again how to meet all impertinences with dignity, and how to relieve the shyness of timid people with her own calm confidence. Let the debutante never think that lessons ended with the closing of the schoolroom door; indeed, now that she is a gay young woman in society they are really just beginning, and will take more study and are far more difficult to learn than any she ever found in books.

CURDINITY AS DECORATIONS. many girls who are out this winter ind, as other girls have found before them, that the debutante has her trials and perplexities, too. Such a lot of them as there seem to be! One never suspected, for example, while one was a mere snip of a schoolgirl, that it was going to be such a hard thing to find conversation. In dreams

The fine that the Mercela is in revolumonth and the state of the sta about other girls; she is willing to let everybody share in her fun, she never plays any little mean social tricks; she is not taken up with herself all the while, and she is honest, genuine, frank and kindly. She is the girl who likes to talk to old gentlemen, to give them the pleasure of a bit of gay gossip with a fresh young girl; she takes time to be civil to the old ladies, she sympathizes with bashful girls younger than herself, and is good/ between whiles to awkward boys. She doean't dangle about in hatrooms all day, munching bon bons and reading novels, but is full of interest and occupations, and has the buoyancy and vigor of high health and overflowing spirits. The important part is that she doesn't pretend to be any of these things, but really is what she seems to be. The debutante will learn in time, as every one does learn, that, while it is very easy to pretend, it is very difficult to decelve people with preteness. Our friends, all know our real characters very well, and the way to make people, think we are good tempered and kindly.

Another lesson the pretty debutante is learning while she flits about ballrooms like a frisky young butterfly is the lesson of adaptability. A little experience teaches her that even though she was the eleverest girl in school and the valedictorian of her class it is best not to talk philosophy or discuss serious problems between the figures of the cotillion. She will have plenty of proper occasions to show what she knows, but in the ballroom such topics are heavy and unsuitable, and she had much better content herself with a merry give and take of nonsense and nothings, so that nothing is lost when the dance comes to break in upon a sentence. Or if the debutante happens to be of the purely butterfly order of mind she will soon learn when she chances to sit beside some grave elderly man at dinner that though her innocent chatter may amuse him for the moment he will easily tire of it, and her best plan will be to listen to him instead. He will be sure to enjoy talking

The chancels will be twined in simple fashion with smilax; ferns will be placed for the day about the altar, and white roses ornament the pulpit. All churches, no matter how fashionable or wealthy, say the decorations will end there.

TOY MAKING IN THE NURSERY.

(From a Special Contributor.)

Just about the Christmas season there is a great deal of sympathy expended upon the stockings that Santa Claus forgets to fill with toys, and this year, because of the hard times that have prevailed, there is hard times that have prevailed, there is likely to be more sympathy than ever needed, because a great many stockings are going to be far from full, and many more are going to be empty.

But a really plucky child is not going to let that worry him or her, and this is why—because clever children can make splendid toys for themselves, some of them quite as good as those out of the toy shops; besides which one must take into consideration the enormous amount of fun to be had out of the making of them.

Suppose this clever boy wants to blow soap-bubbles, but has no pipe for the purpose. Does he sit down to fret and to wonder why he can't have things like other boys? You don't know him. He finds out something else that will serve as well. When he wants to blow bubbles he cuts off the top of an acorn, digs out the meat inside, bores a little hole on one side, puts a long goose quill into the hole as a pipeatem, and there is his pipe, which will blow just as big bubbles as the clay ones do. But perhaps he's a boy who lives in town and therefore acorns are not easily come by, so then he makes a substitute. The grocers all keep the long straws that people drink lemonade through, they don't mind giving away a few. This straw he slits down very gently about a quarter of its length, making two cuts of the knife at right angles to each other, so that when he bends outward the part that has been slit the four pieces form an exact cross. If this is dipped lightly into the suds and one blows gently from the other end as big bubbles can be made as any that are blown.

Perhaps it is jack-straws that this boy who is so independent of circumstances, wants to play. This is how he sets about having the game te play. He gets a bundle of those lemonade straws from the grocer; he cuts out some little round disks of paper which he numbers 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 50, 75, 100, 150, 200. Then he makes a very small slit in the top of each straw, puts a little glue on the edge of a disk, sticks it into the slit, and lays it away to dry while he makes another. When these are all done he opens out a short hairpin, bends one end into a hook, dips the other end into glue and thrusts it into the last straw he has left, and there is his set of jack-straws complete, with the hook with which to pick them up.

There are other toys that cause a great deal of fun among the younger children. He calls one "fhe skating girl," and in the nursery it is considered his masterpiece.

For the girl skating he cuts out a round piece of cardboard (out of a picture card) about two inches in diameter. In the center only half as large as the other. This paper he pastes smoothly under the bottom of the cardboard. Then touched lightly, yet attractively, on subjects that were delightful to discuss later on at a dinner or social function. She said once: "You know, I am not a bit good at skipping things. I read very slowly, and the world has passed on to another book before I close the chapters of the former sensation. It is very tiresome. I have always to interrupt a discussion of the newest story with 'Please don't, you will tell me how it ends, and I am only half way through.' That leaves me out of all the criticism. But now, things are changed. When the book has hardly gotten about, before the whispers of its popularity have deepened into murmurings, my clever little reader has bought it for me, and I say with a triumphant smile to whoever approaches me, 'Isn't such and such a book splendid? I think the finale brilliant.' In fact, I am now a leader in literary topics, and I owe it all to my friend at $5 a week.'

The young reader only cares for a limited patronage. Four customers brought her in $20 a week, and she lived very comfortably on that. The work gave her great pleasure, for she was by nature a most clever girl, but was too poor to afford the "latest in literature." She said her throat was very strong, and the work never strained her vocal chords, and fully appreciated the mental advantages she herself gained. HARRYDELE HALLMARK.

The Soil Did not Remain.

NECK DECORATION.

FASHIONABLE ARTICLES FOR PRETTY THROATS.

Some of the Exquisite Novelties of the Season to Muffle Under the Female Chin Divine.

And now, along with the swollen sleeve and wired petticoat, it really looks as if the ruff germ were among us!

One of the new neck fixings, that borrows most prominently from spacious Elizabethan times, begins with a close gorget of fur, that incloses a throat-ruche of chiffon as white and full as was Queen Bess's own.

Bess's own. The collar itself, which, by way of illusflourneed with heavy lace tops it, and this ties in front in short scarf ends, that are winged with sable tails and violets. The entire sable and mink skins them-selves figure, too, at times in these millin-ery fargies.

selves figure, too, at times in these millinery fancies.

More often than not, together with long sable scarfs that own a multiplicity of tails, they will be worn plain, but occasionally will be seen a little beast, with its full complement of members, and its poor little throat tied up with wings of cherry or petunia velvet, and, perhaps, jeweled balls, growing somewhere out of its body.

A mink that grows a head at either end fastens over two tails and jabot pieces of point applique. At the back of each little neck, perhaps, will be planted, with almost comic effect, a stiff magenta satin zinnia.

AN EXTREME NOVELTY. And now for the plum of the season! The very last agony in muffers is a huge brute, that has the head of a wildcat and a beautiful iron-gray fur. It is a lyax-and a dear and luxurious possession, not to be dreamed of by com mon mortals. Over a plain tailor gown tration, say is of ermine, measures from top to bottom at the back, its widest limits, ten inches, seven being above and three below what constitutes the dividing line between throat and shoulders. The upper portion flares sufficiently to give ease to the head and allow the inside ruche to peep well over the collar top. The lower three inches lie perfectly smooth and projecting below this point, and quite as wide again is a full round shoulder puff of the chiffon.

Two long ends of this, fashioned into a single heavy loop, finishes the front; and as a throat fastening, there are at each side, over a fluffy fall of little tails, two baby ermine heads, that may have eyes of real diamonds or rubles, or be, with just as good taste, any of the marvelous imitation gems fashion is now taking up. In the same way is shaped a collar of chinchilla, with trimmlings of gray chiffonchilla, with trimmlings of gray chiffonchilfon so tenderly hued that it is difficult to tell when white ends and gray begins. COLLAR FASTENINGS.

And now a word further as to this won derful fastening-than which nothing more derful fastening—than which nothing more charming or novel could be imagined. First, at each side of the fur collar, and divided by a front space of four inches, grew satin rosettes, like full musk roses. Next came into play a gray chiffon scarf, doubled to a width of eighteen inches, and that measured thirty-six in length. It was not sewed anywhere to the chinchilla background, but was made to fasten the collar by being passed at the center across the space in front, and then with an upward twist twirled around the rosettes, to fall at last under these in heavy ends to the bust line.

The whole was a delightfully illustration of elegant simplicity that was most alluring, and since it mumed one of New York's select throats—it was at the theater, by the way—it is quite safe to believe it a correct and modish model for either afternoon or evening wear.

FOR DAYLIGHT WEAR.

FOR DAYLIGHT WEAR.

Neck fixings for day use are fashloned with darker furs, sable, mink, broadtail and the maturer Persian being the favorites.

With them are combined laces, flowers, and the wonderful antique velvet that looks like satin and has a webbed surface. Curiously jeweled and armor effects are also much sought after.

For example, a little throat-piece of tender broadtail or Persian, that spreads barely out to the tip of the ear, will be continued three inches on the shoulders, with steel pallettes laid in close scales. Under this will be three narrow, graduating ripple ruffles of rich yellow velvet, shrouded with black chiffon, and a large ruche of this, mingled with yellow velvet, shrouded with black chiffon, and a large ruche of this, mingled with yellow loce, and long ends of black ribbon, will finish the throat and front.

A bewitching little shoulder ruffle, cut in bat-wing points across the back and sleeve tops, is of antique velvet, in emerale of the point of the poi aside from its mere becomingness and warmth, it gives one a to-the-manor-born air that any girl might be proud of. As can be seen, it is in a blaze of savage akins and the tenderest flummeries of high civilization that the fin de sicele woman is going out to meet the trumpets of the twentieth century.

Before she resches them, if she keeps on, she may seem to the purely objective eye, like Maivolio, "tainted in her wits," but for the moment her charming combinations are things of beauty not to be denied. And along with the quality of charm these garbled neck fixings give endless hints as to the using up of materfals, and to the bedecking of plain gowns for festive occasions.

For decoration, gold in an elaborate design fills the inside cover of these pretty affairs, while the cover of these pretty affairs, while the cover of these pretty anairs, while the outside ornamentation is merely a simple wreath of gilt, artistically done half way between the stem and the top rim, leaving the ivory tint as the scheme, which, by contrast, is perfection in its way.

CHAPTER II.

'Men must always be making traps for men, or they are not content," said Mow-gli. "Last night it was Mowgli-the last night seems many rains ago. Tonight it is Messua and her man. Tomorrow and for many nights after it will be Mowgli's four men were sitting with their backs to it.

Mowgli knew the manners and customs of the villagers very fairly. He argued that so long as they could eat, and talk and smoke, they would not do anything else; but as soon as they had fed they would begin to be dangerous. Buldeo would be coming in Defore long, and if his eacort had done its duty Buldeo would have a very interesting tale to tell. So he went in through the window, and stooping over the man and the woman cut their thongs, pulled out the gags and looked around the hut for some milk.

Messua was half wild with pain and fear (she had been beaten and stoned and cuffed all the morning,) and Mowgli put his hand over her mouth just in time to stop a scream. Her husband was only bewildered and angry, and sat picking dust and things out of his torn beard.

"I knew—I knew he would come," Messua sobbed, at last. "Now do I know that he is my son," and she hugged Mowgli to her heart. Up to that time he had been perfectly steady, but now he began to tremble all over, and that surprised him immensely.

"What are all these things? Why have

"Son or sorcerer, what good will that do us?" the man answered. "We are as dead already."

"And the men and women would be said the husband.

"H'm!" said Mowgil, and he tickled the 'Ah!" he littled his head and listened to shouting and trampling outside. "So they have let Buldeo come home at last."

"Yes—we—I met him. He has a tale to tell. Of that I am certain; and while he is telling it there is time to do much. But first I will look and see what they mean. Think where ye would go, and tell me when I come back."

He bounded through the window and ran along again outside the wall of the cried around the peepul tree. Buildee was lying on the ground coughing and groaning, and every one was asking him questions all at once. His hair had fallen about his shoulders; his hands and legs were skinned from climbing up trees, and he-could hardly speak, but he felt the importance of his position keenly. From time to time he said something about devils and singing devils and magic enchantment just to give the crowd a taste of what was coming. Then he called for water.

"I also will follow. I am old, but not yet toothess." Mother Wolf reared herself upon end, and looked through the window into the dark of the hut.

In a minute she dropped noiselessly, and all she said was: "I gave thee thy first milk; but Bagheera speaks true. Man goes to man at last."
"Maybe," said Mowgli, with a very unpleasant look on his face. "But tonight I am very far from the trail. Wait here, but do not let her see." But do not let her see."
"Thou wast never afraid of me, Little Frog," said Mother Walf, backing into the high grass, and blotting herself out, as she knew how.
"And now," said Mowgli, cheerfully, as he came into the hut again, "they are all sitting around Buideo, who is saying that which did not happen. When his talk is finished, they say they will assuredly come here with the Red—with fire and burn you both. And then!"

"I have spoken to my man," said Messua. "Kanhiwara is thirty miles from her, but at Kanhiwara we may find the English—"
"And what pack are they?" said Mowgli.
"I do not know. They be white, it is said they govern all the land, and do not suffer people to burn or beat each other without witnesses. If we can get thither tonight we live. Otherwise we die."
"Live then. No man passes the gates tonight. But what does he do?" Messua's husband was on his hands and knees digging up the earth in one corner of the hut."

"It is killing at last! The singing."
"What is a fiet of the four, then?" and of the four, it do not wish one of the Man-pack to leave the gates to the four, I do not wish one of the Man-pack to leave? feet, but he lifted her very quickly, with a shiver. Then she hung about his neck and called bim every name of blessing she could think of, but her husband looked enviously across his fields and said: "If we reach Kanhiwara and I get the ear of the English, I will bring such a lawsuit against the Brahmin and old Buldeo and the others as shall eat the village to a bone. They shall pay me twice over for my crops untilled and my buffalo unfed. I will have a great justice."

Mowgli laughed. "I do not know what justice is, but—some next rains and see what is left."

They went off toward the jungle, and Mother Welf leaped from her place of hiding.

The conference under the peepul tree had been growing noisier and noisier, at the far end of the village. It broke in wild yells and a rush up the street of men and women waving clubs and bamboos and sickles and knives. Buldeo and the Brahmin were at the head of it, but the mob was close at their heels, and they cried, "The witch and the wizard! Let us see if t one corner of my house is a trill, wide er, rising high above the trees which round it. In one of the upper rooms of s tower I work and think, and here, in evening and early part of the night, I d to be quite alone, except for the sets.

THE GHOSTS IN MY TOWER.

By Frank R. Stockton.

Before I had come to this house I knew that the tower was haunted, but I did not mind that. As the ghosts had never done any one any harm I did not believe they would do me any harm, and I thought I should really be glad of their company, which must certainly be different from the company of ordinary people. So, when I had arranged an upper room in the tower so that I might pleasntly work and think therein, I expected the ghosts to come to me, and should have been very much disappointed if they had not.

I did not exactly understand these ghosts, of which I had heaved nothing definite, except that they haunted the tower, and I did not know in what way they would manifest themselves to me. It was not long, however, after I had begun to occupy the room before the ghosts came to me. One evening, a little before Christmas, after everybody in the house but myself had gone to bed, and all was quiet, outside and inside, I heard a knock, and was on the point of saying "Come in," when the Angock was repeated and I found that it did not come from the door, but from the wall. I smiled.

"You cannot come in that way"

ou cannot come in that way," I tht, "unless there are secret doors in walls, and even then you must open for yourself."

"You cannot come in that way," I thought, "unless there are secret doors in these walls, and even then you must open them for yourself."

I went on with my writing, but I soon accided up again, for I thought I heard a chair gently pushed back against the wall in a corner behind me, and almost immediately I heard a noise as if some little boy had dropped a number of marbles, or perhaps pennies, but there was no chair in the corner at which I looked, and there were no pennies nor marbles on the floor.

Night after night I heard my ghosts—for a had come to consider them as mine, which I had bought with the house—and, although I could not see them there were so many ways in which they let me know they existed that I felt for them a sort of companionship. When in the quiet hours of the early night I heard their gentle knocks I knew that were the circumstances different they would have been glad to come in, and I did not feel lonely.

Now and then I thought I heard the voices of the ghosts, sometimes outside, under my window, and sometimes behind me in a distant corner of the room. Their tones were low and plaintive, and I could not distinguish words or phrases, but it often seemed as if they were really speaking to me, and that I ought to try to understand and answer them. But I soon discovered that these voice-like sounds were caused by the vagrant breezes going up and down the tall chimney of the tower, making acolian tones, not of music, but of vague and indistinct speech.

The winter passed, and at last there came a time when I saw one of the ghosts. It was in the dusk of an evening, early in spring, and just outside of an open window, that it appeared to me. It was as plain to my sight as if it had been painted in delicate half tones against a somber background of tender foliage and evening sky.

that I should know one from another. But there they were; not only did I hear them; not only, night after night, did my ears assure me of their existence, but in the shadows of the trees, as the summer came on, and on the lonelier stretches of the lawn. I saw them, and I knew that in good truth my home was haunted.

stretches of the lawn, I saw them, and I knew that in good truth my home was haunted.

Late one afternoon, while walking in my grounds, I saw before me one of the specters of my tower. It moved slowly over the lawn, scarcely seeming to touch the tips of the grass, and with no more sound than a cloud would make when settling en a hilltop. Suddenly it turned its bright, watchful eyes upon me, and then, with a start that seemed to send a thrill even through the gray mantle which lightly touched its shoulders it rose before my very eyes until it was nearly as high as the top of my tower!

Wings it had not, nor did it float in the air; it ran like a streak of gray electricity along the lightning rod, only, instead of flashing down it, as electricity would pass from the sky, it ran upward. I did not see this swiftly-moving spirit reach the topmost point of the rod, for, at a point where the thick wire approached the caves, it vanished.

By the time that I had come to the con-

he eaves, it vanished.

By the time that I had come to the con-

the caves, it vanished.

By the time that I had come to the conclusion, not altogether pleasant to my mind, that my ghosts were taking advantage of my forbearance, with their mystic knocks and signals in the night, and their visits in the daylight, and that there must be too many of them in my tower. I must admit that they annoyed me very little and I was not in the least afraid of them but there were others who came into my tower and who slept in some of its rooms, and to the minds of visitors and timorous maids there was something uncanny and terrifying in these midnight knocks and scratches.

So, having concluded from what I had seen that day that it was the very uppermost part of the tower which had become the resort of these gray sprites, and from which they came to disturb our quiet and repose, I determined to interfere with their passage from the earth to my tower top. If, like an electric current, they used the lightning rod as a means of transit, I made a plan which would compel them to use it in the conventional and proper way. The rod was placed there that lightning might come down it, not that it might go up, so I set myself to put the rod in a condition that would permit the ghosts to descend as the lightning did, but which would prevent them from going up!

Accordingly I thoroughly greased the Accordingly I thoroughly greased the rod for a considerable distance above the rod for a considerable distance above the ground.

"Now," said I to myself, "you may all come down, one after the other, whenever you like. You will descend very quickly when you reach the greased part of the rod, but you will not go up again. You are getting very bold, and if you continue your mad revels in my tower you will frighten people and give my house a bad name. You may become dryads if you like and shut yourselves up in the hearts of the tall and solemn oaks. There you may haunt the bluejays and the wood-peckers, but they will not tell tales of ghostly visits, which may keep my friends away and make my servants give me warning."

peckers, but they will not tell tales of ghostly visits, which may keep my friends away and make my servants give me warning."

After that there were no more gray flashes up my lightning rod, though how many came down it I know not, ead the intramural revels in the tower ceased. But not for long. The ghosts came back again; perhaps not so many as before, but still enough of them to let me know that they were there.

How they ascended to their lofty haunts I could not tell, nor did I try to find out. I accepted the situation. I could not contend with these undaunted sprites.

One evening in the autumn, outside the same window from which I had seen the first ghost of the tower, I saw another apparition, but it was not one of the gray specters to which I had become accustomed. It was a jet black demon. Its eyes, large, green and glaring, shone upon me, and it was as motionless and dark as a statue cut in coal.

For only an instant I saw it, and then in a flash, like the apparition I had first seen from that window, it disappeared. After that, I saw the demon again and at last they disappeared altogether. The advent of the black spirit seemed to have exerted an evil influence over the spirits in gray, and like the Indian in the presence of the white man, they faded away and gradually became extinct.

The last time I saw one of my ghosts it appeared to me late on a November afternoon, among brown foliage of an aged oak, just as a drayad might have peeped forth from her leafy retreat, wondering if the world were yet open to her for a ramble upon the stars. The world was open to my gray ghosts, but only in one direction. Between it and me could be seen, among the shadows of the ground, plied Jack. "Hark! The troopers are coming nearer."

But, as ill-luck would have it, the mahout halted the huge quadruped on the intersection of the two paths. The zemindar and his servant glanced uneasily down the crossroad. They heard the tramp of the approaching troopers, and were discussing it in low tones. cussing it in low tones.

It was a critical time for the fugitives, but their suspense was happily cut short by the conception in Pink's brain of a stupendous idea.

"Lads," he whispered, "'ere's a chance for us. Obey orders, and do as I do

The next instant Pink was in the how-dah, and as quickly the mahout tried to wriggle to the ground. But Pink leaned forward and caught But Pink leaned inward and causait the fellow by the back of the neck, at the same time pressing the cold muzzle of a pistol to his forehead, and jabbering angry rose from his knees, wheeled to one side, and plunged up the mountain path with long and rapid strides.

Holkar Singh glared vindictively after his stolen quadruped, and called down fearful maledictions on the thieves. The aged Hindoo stood with uplifted hands, straining his eyes to get a last glimpse of Jack. Then a curve of the road hid them from view.

The daring act had transpired in a very brief time, and the fugitives now began to realize that they had once more eluded their bloodthirsty pursuers.

The tramp of hoofs grew fainter and fainter in the distance 'until it could be heard no more. On and on went the elephant, striding clumsily over rocks and logs at a pace no horse could equal on so rough a road.

The howdah swayed and shook dizzily, but the straps held as fast as did its occupants. The mahout clung to his perch like a monkey.

"It won't do the zemindar any 'arm to rest a bit,'" said Pink. "We treated 'im badly, 'lads, but it 'ad to be. Jove! 'ow nearly the troopers nabbed us. Now we're out of danger. From 'ere the road pierces the ghauts, and I doubt if the 'orses can follow at all."

"It was rare luck to get the elephant," and it was good to feel the ground under foot again.

The mahout was the picture of fear, for he evidently believed that his captors were going to kill him. When Pink spoke a few words to him in Hindostaneo his dusky face beamed with joy, and he salaamed profoundly. He made the elephant rise, and wheeled him about. An instant later both had vanished in the forest, and the fugitives were alone.

"Well, what next?" asked Jack.

"Tippoo Sahib's barrier," replied Pink, as he stiffly led the way into the mouth of the valley. "Once we pass that we're safe."

The boys locked at one another mysteriously. "What is it like?" exclaimed Myles.

The boys locked at one another mysteriously. "What is it like?" exclaimed Myles.
"Not 'aving seeh it, I can't say exactly," was Pink's answer. "But we'll soon be there unless what I 'eard in the palace that night was all lies."
With this the lads had to be content, and silently and in single file they followed their guide.
For nearly an hour they traced the upward course of a brawling terrent that flowed through gigantic trees and dense vegetation. Here and there signs of a path were visible, but it had evidently not been trod by human feet for many years. The valley was less than a quarter of a mile wide. It was really a gorge; for it was hemmed in and deeply shadowed by parallel walls of sheer rock only slightly

"We might as well try to seele the clims," added Jack, laughing.

"Old on, lads," said Pink, a little sharply. Did I say we were going over the wall? There's a way through it, according to old Tippoo's written document, which I 'eard read and discussed in the palace.

which I card read and discussed in the palace—"By the grating?" cried Myles and Jack in one breath.
"Yes, that's the beginning of the combination. Come on, there's no time to waste. The bloody troopers will kill their orses to overtake us."

Pink glanced uneasily down the gorge, and listened for a moment. Then he waded into the icy pool, and the beys followed him.

As the water rose to their hips they removed their cartridge belts and revolvers and held them overhead. They were waist deep when they reached the grating, and peered curiously between the rusty bars. They saw a valuted space with slimy walls to right and left. At the farther end, three or four yards distant, a broad sheet of water fell noisily from a height of six feet.

The place where the stream entered the harrier was invisible, though a dusky gleam of light quivered on the brink of the cataract.

The barrier was evidently enormously theke-four yards at the least. It was

As he returned to his companions he drew a waterproof matchsafe from his pocket and snapped the lid open.

"Now. lads," he exclaimed, "we must 'ave a little light for the next figure of the combination. You'll feel warm enough when the climb begins."

The match had scarcely been scraped when it dropped with a hiss into the water. Pink's face turned ghastly white, and he made a mad dash for the platform.

The boys were astonished for an instant, but a quick glance through the bars revesled the awful truth. Every sense of chilliness left their veins as they saw Mogul Mir's ugly face and scarlet jacket emerge from the edge of the forest.

Behind him came trooper after trooper all on foot and all bristling with rifles and tulwars.

It seemed a long time—though it was

It seemed a long time—though it was realy scarcely five seconds—until Pink was back at the grating, a rifle in his hands and a brace of revolvers in his bosom.

"I'll attend to these devils," he shouted, hoarsely. "You'll find a stone with a 'andle to it on the right side. It must be there. Pull it 'ard. Quick, lads, for 'eaven's sake."

But the boys stood still in the water as though petrified. A spell seemed to be upon them. They heard a thunderous report at their ears and saw Mogul Mir spin around and clap one hand to his arm.

Crack! crack! A trooper went down like a log and another pitched headfirst into the stream.

the stream.

Then drifting powder smoke partly hid the scene, and the roar of the cataract was drowned in shrill cries and the angry beich lets were whistling overhead and behind them.

They climbed out upon the stone platform, which was a yard beyond the grating, and thus out of range. They vaguely remembered Pink's instructions, and ran their hands up and down the slimy wall. With nervous fingers Jack scraped a match, and right in front of his breast he saw an iron handle protruding from a block of masonry 2x3 feet in dimensions.

His shout of joy brought Myles and Paltu to his side, and all three took hold. For half a minute they tugged and pulled in vain.

No aid could be expected from Pink, His repeating rifle was empty now, and he was blazing away at the troopers with a revolver in each hand. The curtain of smoke was all that saved him from the "Pull harder!" cried Jack.

"I can't," Myles yelled; "my fingers are breaking."

Paltu lost his hold, and staggered back.

bars, and emptied the chambers in rapid succession.

The command to try a gun was understood by the boys. In a trice they had a rifle through the iron handle and were tugging at stock and barrel.

Harder and harder they pulled, and suddenly the stone swung far enough out to show that it was only six inches thick.

"All together!" yelled Jack, and now, with a creaking noise the big slab grated clear around on a rusty pivot, revealing a yawning black hole, through which surged a fetid current of air.

The boys cheered loudly, and shouted to Pink that the hole was open.

"In with you, quick!" came the hoarse reply.

Myles and Paltu were the first to enter.

"In with you, quick!" came the hoarse reply.

Myles and Paltu were the first to enter, and three feet back in the passage they found room to sit upright. As quickly as possible Jack passed in the spades, weapons and ammunition.

Then Pink sprang to the lad's side, having fired the last charge of his revolvers, and both plunged into the hole.

For a few seconds all four were huddled together in confusion, panting hard for breath in the hot, stifling atmosphere. Jack had mislaid the matchbox and could not find it.

Pink crawled forward and fumbled about with his hands until he found an iron handle, similar to the other, that was rivited to the inner side of the slab.

He called for help, and Myles instantly responded. Just as both began to pull the troopers swarmed up to the bars, and an instant later half a dozen of them dived under the grating and rose inside the wault.

But the great slab was now moving on its rusted pivot, in response to the vigorous tugs of Pink and Myles. Nearer and neares, swung the outer end.

"Only 'aif a foot more," cried Pink, and, as he spoke, there was a scraping noise and a flash of yellow light. Jack had found the matchbox.

Alas! Just then the slab stuck obstinately (ast, and through the narrow gap that was still open the glare of the burning match shone on the dusky, feroclous faces of two of Mogui Mir's troopers.

A TEN CENT CHRISTMAS. [From a Special Contributor.]

Many fond papas and mammas will be forced to pass by 'the $5 counters of cast iron toys and French dolls this Christmas as times continue "so hard."

as times continue "so hard."

But the nursery, at least, may be made jubilant at the Yule tide with a cheap but joily festival. The 5 and 10 cent counters offer a tempting array of economics for the little ones. There one can purchase a dozen alag marbles for 1 can purchase a dozen slag marbles for 1 cent. Five dozen marbles in a bag will appeal to the little boy not yet old to understand "alleys" and "agates," and five dozen costs but 5 cents.

five dozen costs but 5 cents.

A box of water colors, with six cakes of paint, a brush and two dishes, furnishes a tremendous amount of amusement for 5 cents. Then there is a top, a whistle, a jumping rope and a diminutive drum for the three-year-old, varying in prices from Sop bubble pipes (two for a penny,) may be made very acceptable it, accompanied by three or four bottles of colored water, for the making of tinted bubbles. Get a 3 cent package of diamond dyes, such as sell for Easter egg purposes. Dissolve the dye in warm water, add a few drops of glycerine, and stiffen the mixture with soap. Bottle each shade in a separate vial and when wanted for blowing bubbles only a little is poured into a basin of warm water, and the bubble-blowing mixture is made. Children never weary of bubble-blowing, and the various tints are a pleasing variation which the little ones will appreciate.

The calico dog and gingham cat are always a variety with babykins, and the numerous varieties of printed calico dolls to be cut out and stuffed and dressed in the clothes that go with them, offer an ever new field for rag doll selections.

Ten cents will buy as much stick candy as the youngsters ought to eat, and the children seem to prefer peppermint stick candy to French bon bons for some excellent infantile reason.

Out its cloudy grayness there shone two a, black, clear and sparkling, fixed upon with questioning intensity. I sat, gazwith checked breath at this ghost of tower.

uddenly I leaned forward—just a fitting of the seemed to weak the seemed to blend into the more than the seemed to blend into the sky, at last dissolving out of my sight. Now, in the early hours of the night my tower is quiet and still. There are no more knocks, no more wild revels in the hidden passages of the walls. My ghosts are gone. All that I hear now are the voices in the chimney, but I know that these are only imanginary voices, and, therefore, they produce in me no feeling of companionship. But my ghosts really existed.

CHAPTER VII.

The Fight at Tippoo Sahib's Barrier.
Quick as he gave the command Pink was crouching deep in the wayside vegetation. The boys dropped clumisily beside him; for a second or two their hearts seemed to stop beating, and they felt an icy chill creep through their veins.

At no time had the fugitives been in a dighter place than now. It was terribly trying to lie there and listen to the ominous voice of danger in both directions—from the rear the faint metallic ring of iron-shod hoofs; from in front a louder and duller sound that as yet baffled recognition.
Pink tocked his rifle, and glanced sideways at Jack and Myles. They understood and two more hammers rose with a shard was behind the other.

Paltu was busy at something else. He had end end care in the wayside red, and just then an elephant actually did lumber.

The lows and appeared to be pondering some knotty question. The boys did not disturb him. They kept a close watch on the mahout, and discussed the strange conduct of the old Hindoo, which all had posserved.

"He wished to cast an evil spell upon your neck for the sared noose."

"I don't pretend to account for it," replik now came out of is brown study and proposed that the interrupted listen should be finished. So half of the bag of provisions was shared and quickly exten.

into sight a short ways up the crossroad. It was handsomely caprisoned, and bore on its back a square howdah, in which sat two persons, evidently servant and master. The latter was a stout, full-bearded oriental, with the dreax and pompcus bearing of a rich zemindar, or landholder. The other was an aged Hindoo, gray haired and dignified. In front of the howdah was perched a thin and wiry little mahout. The hidden watchers drew long broaths of relief. Three rifle hammers were softly lowered to half-cock.

"They're only travelers," whispered Myles, "but they chose a mighty awkward time to drop along. O, why don't they hurry?"

"They can't disappear too soon," replied Jack. "Hark! The troopers are coming nearer."

for us. Obey orders, and do as I do. That's all."

With this Pink rose suddenly up and drew a bead on the zemindar's breast. Almost as quickly Myles and Jack had the servant and the mahout covered. The latter trembled so violently that he let his goad fall to the ground."

"Down with you," continued Pink, forgetting to speak Hindustanee. "No fooling. We're in a 'urry."

The zemindar was a plucky fellow, and his face flushed with rage.

"Dogs, ye shall pay dearly for this," he cried, in fairly good English. "I am Holkar Singh, a land-holder of Mercara in Coorg. I am journeying peaceably homewerd through the territory of Mysore—" homewerd through the territory of Mysore—"

"Get down," persisted Pink, angrily.
"You're not going to be murdered or robbed. We only want to borrow your elephant for a while."
With an evil scowl on his face the zemindar nodded to the mahout, who instantly made the elephant kneel.
Maèter and servant climbed out of the howdah and stood a few feet to one side. Both bristled with swords and daggers, but neither had firearms.
"Up with you, lads," cried Pink. "Lively now."

"Up with you, lads," cried Pink. "Lively now."

Myles and Paltu scrambled into the howdah, and as Jack followed them he caught the servant's eyes fixed strangely upon him. There was no malice in the look. It expressed sudden amazement and incredulity—even a touch of affection, as though the sight of the lad had vibrated some long-forgotten chord of memory in the old Hindoo's heart.

"Your elephant will be back 'ere by sunset," added Pink, turning to the zemindar. "If you want satisfaction, apply to the British Resident at Mysore, in about a week from now. And you'll be all the more likely to get it if you detain these cutthroats coming yonder as long as you can."

pistol to his forehead, and jabbering angry Hindustanee into his ear.

This gentle style of argument was effective, and the mahout instantly became as tractable as a lamb. At a word from him, and a touch of the goad, the elephant rose from his knees, wheeled to one side, and plunged up the mountain path with long and rapid strides.

Presently the walls began to converge, and when they were only twenty yards apart Tippoo Sahib's barrier rose suddenly from the trees and jungle.

The boys uttered cries of amazement, and even Pink was impressed by the wonderful sight. Here was a fit monument to the ancient Mahometan rajah—a massive granite wall 100 feet high that stretched across the gorge from cliff to cliff.

The stones were of months to converge the stones were of the converge to the stones.

stretched across the gorge from cliff to cliff.

The stones were of vast dimensions, and had been well fitted together. Not a crevice or projection offered hope of scaling the barrier. Its frowing front was above and smooth, and above its flat summit the mountain walls towered nearly two thousand feet higher.

At its base a rusty arched grating served as an outlet for the stream, which here rested tranquilly in a sort of pool before beginning its turbulent flow down the valley. Behind the grating was pitch blackness.

"Whatt did Tippoo Sahib mean by building such a thing?" was Jack's comment, after a critical survey of the barrier.

"Partly to keep the treasure safe," replied Pink, "and no doubt partly for other reasons known only to 'imself."

in the dance, and will be named "Los Posados," as the Mexicans themselves

Then drifting powder smoke partly hid the scene, and the roar of the cataract was drowned in shrill cries and the angry belch of firearms.

"Are you mad?" yelled Pink, seeing that the boys were still there. "Off with you. Open that stone."

He stopped shooting long enough to thrust his matchbox into Jack's hands and jerk him violently to the right.

This broke the spell, and the three lads splanded hastily away from the bars; bullets were whistling overhead and behind them.

OVERKIND FRIENDS.

People Who Appear Ungracious and Lack Tact.

Visitors Who Drop in When the Family Skeleton is Dancing.

Visiting as a Fine Art—The Friendships of the Women. Is Man Stronger Mentally Than Woman?

How to Appear Before Your Guests

Has a Clever Sermonic Idea.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14, 1894.—(From Our Regular Correspondent.) Did you ever have an overkind friend? One of the sort that considered it her duty to tell you unpleasant truths? To pay you visits when you wished to be alone? And to criticise closely everything you did, or said, or thought The kind of friend that came at 4 o'clock in the afternoon with the intention of dining-with you, and when she departed at 9 left you feeling so unhappy you wished somebody might be killed, you don't exactly mention who? This is the kind of friend, so-called, who talks about your weaknesses to her other friends and never confesses that you have any virtues. She doesn't require an invitation to pay you a visit, and, consequently, she is certain to appear at some time when your skeleton is dancing the can-can, and making it overvisible. She gets acquainted with your pet vice and then she talks to your about it before people. She will volunteer, when there is nobody around who has a pin, to tell you that your gown is ripped, and she is always quite willing to make you understand exactly how ill you look and how much wiser it would have been for you to have stayed at home and taken care of yourself instead of going out and having a good time.

SHE IS EVERYBODY'S FRIEND.

and everybody says how very kind she is, while they would be quite willing to permit her to be kind to somebody else and ignore them. I think a little kindness is more appreciated than this absolute donating all of one's time and thought and action to somebody else. Really and truly to dedicate one's kindness to oneself is a wise thing to do, and not to give too much of it to outsiders. The overkind friend likes to "drop in." Now, the wise woman never permits this. Nobody with any sense likes people to drop in unexpectedly. When you and I, who claim to be wise, want our friends to dine or lunch with us, we ask them and state exactly what day and what hour we expect them to arrive, and then, we have put away all our little troubles. Indeed, as far as possible, we have forgotten them. We ave on a best gown, and a smile in harmony, and on our table is the dish we consider the most tasty, and which we have taken a little trouble to have prepared in honor of our friends. Then everything goes right. The one who is invited has a good time and so does her hosters. But when you drop in unexpectedly, you never know what the result may be. To be very positive, I want to say that I never bored anybody by doing this, and I shouldn't thank anybody for foisting hersel? upon me when there has been no invitation extended. There was a time in my life when I submitted to it. But I am wiser now. And when the uninvited and obtrusive come, they simply hear that Mistress Bab is unable to see anybody to day. And I advise all women who have been imposed upon to do the same thing, and then visiting will be more agreeable and become more of a fine art.

WOMEN IN BOARDING-HOUSES. What to Do with Your "Hurts"-Bab

for women to have spells of hysteria or faint; in fact, I have known of there being as many as seven in one evening who gave way to wild attacks of tears and hysteria. Then, they got up affections for each other, and there were jealousies and ridculous expressions of love, such as kissing gloves, and crying if somebody else kissed the beloved one, and walking around in each other's arms, or sitting on the staircase and telling of the trueness of their love. I left and went to an ordinary place, and from the very day after I got there I began to feel better and stronger, because the atmosphere was mixed, and men and women were thrown together socially, as God had intended them to be."

Another woman, talking about the same sort of place, said: "I went to dine at the Home, and it seemed to me as if I saw nothing but women, heard nothing but women, and no subjects were discussed that hadn't women, and women alone, for their topics. I had no appetite for my dinner, and I felt perfectly certain that

THE CHICKEN WAS A HEN,
The oysters were all proper ladies, and that the ham had been taken from a lady pig. Nothing could ever induce me to dine there again." Now, neither of these women were fools. They were simply normal-women, healthy in their tastes and sweet and pure in their ideas. But they could see the weakening and depressing effect resulting from throwing a lot of young women together and forcing them to talk too much about themselves. As there are no men about to interest them, they think about themselves, talk about themselves and grow so conceited that they are frightful bores.

Then there is another phase of this life. That of the girl who gets up a ridiculous affection for another girl, finds everything beautiful, attractive and satisfying in her. Do you know what is the matter with that girl? She wants a real, and not a pretended, sweetheart. And if she were out in the real world, she would attract one, would probably marry him and make a good wife and mother. But as it is, she is wasting a deal of affection. You probably think ther I don't believe in women friendships. I do. But not of this kind. And I consider the THE CHICKEN WAS A HEN,

BEST FRIEND FOR A YOUNG GIRL To have is the man she is going to marry.

I do not think all girls should marry, but that does not prevent their having pleasant friends among men and receiving many courtesies from them. As women grow more agreeable, they realize what pleasant friends men can be, and how they can bring into the home life, the rush and freshness of the world outside, which is delightful to a woman, and how they can receive the taste of a home in return. Men and women give and take fairly and honestly, and for that reason they can, better than two women or two men, be good friends. A woman can do a great deal with a man. Influence him very much for good or bad, and receive from him in return encouragement, and mentally.

A woman is never as strong as a man mentally. She doesn't want to reach up to his brain, but just to his heart, and then she will know what it is to be a real companionship means! That companionship between a man and woman, that grows sweeter and stronger and stiller as the months go by. I say stiller, because, as two people learn to know each other, and to read each other's hearts, they do not need to speak every word; a look tells.

to read each other's hearts, they do not need to speak every word; a look tells...

WOMAN'S WARM HEART.

Sometimes a man takes the heart, and cares for it, and loves it, until it beats with pride, and joy, and love for him. Sometimes he takes it and slights it and forgets it and hurts it. And, being a feminine heart, it beats with love for him just the same. And the brain that belongs to it excuses him, and says to it. "He doesn't think; he doesn't know." And under this treatment, the heart grows broader and more charitable and kinder. And some day when it ceases to beat, everybody knows what a dear, loving heart it was, and most of all is its loss felt by the man who neglected it.

You think your heart would rebel against this—this quiet submission, this sublime bravery? It might; but what would you gain by it? You would be no better and no happier woman if you opened your heart and said to the multitude, "Come and look at my hurts!" How many would put vinegar? How many would put vinegar? How many would pour hierat hat, having seen four hurts, they must not be spoken of, but tenderly cared for, and then forsotten? I think it is the wisest to keep your hurts to yourself, my

HUMANITY'S WOES.

Sometimes the temptation is very great to tell of one's wees. It seems almost at if they might be cast aside in that way; but you tell of your sorrow to your particular friend, and it goes to her particular friend, and in time it is the gossip of the town, and you are justly blamed for not keeping your affairs to yourself. The world isn't anxious to hear of people's troubles; it only has time to jeer at them, and wonder why, instead of talking about pleasant things, it is bored with stories of people's sufferings. It is a supersensitive world, when it comes to hearing about things that are not quite pleasant. It is like the sermons that are preached nowadays.

WHAT MINISTERS SHOULD PREACH. congregations don't like to hear of their vices; they prefer literary efforts that are interesting, but that do not strike home. They like intellectual questions of the day taken up and solved, whereas they ought to have to listen to the sins of lying, stealing, killing, and bearing false witness. They think sin is coarse and vulgar, and while it may apply to the poor, doesn't reach them. I have my own idea about a sermon. It is that it ought to last about five minutes, and I ought to be told to be less selfish, and some-body else ought to be told how to honor his father and mother. I don't care about hearing sermons about creeds. There are many mansions. I don't want to hear sermons that tell you of the 500 meanings of one line in the Old Testament. I like a sermon that is going to make you and me better in a practical way. I like a sermon that takes the ten commandments and reads between the lines.

BAB'S TEN COMMANDMENTS. vices; they prefer literary efforts that are BAB'S TEN COMMANDMENTS. II. Thou shalt not tail down and worship brandy, Burgundy, or any wine in bottles, for the sins of the father shall descend upon the children unto the second and third generation of them that are drunkards.

III. Thou shalt not speak lightly of that which thy neighbor honoreth.

IV. Thou shalt not make the Sabbath day one of horror and bigotry, but instead of gladness and good will. V. Thou shalt not make light of the or gladness and good will.

V. Thou shalt not make light of the weaknesses of thy father, or thy mother, for age and weakness will come to thee some day.

VI. Thou shalt not hurt by word or deed any living thing.

VII. Thou shalt not defile thyself with mean thoughts or words.

VIII. Thou shalt not long for, with an ill-will, that which is the possession of thy neighbor.

IX. Thou shalt not talk scandal.

X. Thou shalt not talk scandal.

When I began this, I didn't know exactly what it would turn out, a song or a sermon. It seems to have verged toward the sermon. Well, it is published on Sunday or close to it, so it will be quite proper for you to read, learn and inwardly digest the wisdom of BAB.

Shirts by Machinery.

Shirts by Machinery. Shirts by Machinery.

(New York Sun:) Machine-made shirts are produced by a remarkably economical and effective adaptation of means to ends. The device of cutting out the parts by wholesale from the material is nicely calculated to avoid waste, and great sewing machines, 100 or 200 or 300 together, run cheaply by a single steam engine, sew together the parts, make the buttonholes, and sew on the buttons, aided by a touch here and there from the hands of 100, 200 or 300 girls, earning from $4 to $7 a week each.

We would call the special attention of the public to the fact that our assortment of Clothing, Furnishing Goods, Shoes, etc., is far superior to that of any similar establishment on this coast. We are acknowledged leaders of low prices, and we would emphatically call the public's attention to the fact that this gift sale makes no difference in prices. In fact, in-many instances, we have reduced lines of goods in order to close them out with the year.
